Rockelle,
You're special to me!
I feel I can tell you anything. We are so much alike!
I love you and cherish every moment I spend with you. All the parties, guys, and lies! Oh well we can't all be good. If you don't call me this summer I'll kill you. I just think we'll be college roomies (oops) next year! Now for have a great time! Just think senior year will serious part. You are one of my best friends
I don't know what I'd do without you. Thanx anything. It's only that there's one thing that I hope that- its only the beginning!
for everything.
Love ya forever,

P.S.
Whenever you need somebody to go to the bathroom with you call me - 492-7070.

Rachelle-

You probably don't realize how much you have meant to me this year. Whenever I wanted to talk, you would always listen and that means a lot to me. I always enjoyed the times that we had done things together and I hope that there will be many more. You are a special friend to me and I will always remember you. English would have been unbearable without you and your warm personality. You had better keep in touch and do some things with me this summer. There will always be a special place in my heart for you and your friendship.

Love you always,

Tim

School enrollment shrinks

This year's lower enrollment caused few problems. Most students were happy to see the additional empty spaces in the parking lot.

Dropping from 2092 last year to its present 2012, this year's enrollment reached the lowest point since the building opened. The apparent cause of low enrollment was a decline in the population of the area.

Although the benefits of lower enrollment outweighed the ill effects, one disadvantage could not be overlooked. Attendance at school athletic events was somewhat reduced.

The size of classes was slightly smaller this year. In the long run, reduced class sizes proved to be a major advantage in some cases because it allowed students to receive more individualized attention from teachers.

Another beneficial part of this year's enrollment decline was being able to find a space in the parking lot more easily. The lot problems of previous years were eliminated also by the placement of a permanent patrolman in the parking lot. Officer Orville Mann checked each car as it entered the parking lot, making sure it had a properly displayed parking sticker.

Getting smaller!

Small change!

Inflation cramps styl

An increase in the rate of inflation brought about several changes in students' life styles.

Because of the tight money situation, students found that they had to become more conservative. For example, the high prices of gas forced many students to buy gas at cut-rate stations and to make use of self-service pumps. Carpooling and riding the bus became common practices for some.

Couples also found that they could not attend as many movies. Many took advantage of twi-light hours a student discount cards at local th aters. Others limited dates to parti at the homes of friends and infr quent dinners out.

Students also had to pay more f everything they bought. They cou no longer go on shopping sprees a buy many items for a relatively sm amount of money.

Food prices also rose substantial Students found that the cost of meal often exceeded their budgets.

Vote!

Raiders cast their ballots

As many of South's students reached age 18, this year brought several firsts.

For some it was the first time to vote. Students had to make decisions on the party, the candidate and the issues which they would support. However, not all eligible voters cast their ballots. Some felt their vote did not matter, and some did not understand how to go about voting.

Since not all students were old enough to vote, those who could not found other ways to participate in the elections. By working on the campaigns of various candidates, these students helped them as much as if they had actually voted for them.

Not only were students participating in local, state and national elections, they also had the opportunity to vote in school elections. Throughout the year, there were sophomore, junior and senior class elections, StuCo elections, Homecoming and Sweetheart candidate elections and Heritage Royalty elections. Students in each class had a chance to be involved in all of these.

Of course, along with any election year comes the campaign memorabilia. Buttons, bumper stickers and campaign hats were only a few of the momentos added to collections.

Food fight!

Beware, junk food junkies

The absence of junk food from the school cafeteria and resulting higher lunch prices were major topics of conversation among students this year.

The cafeteria was forced by a federal order to stop selling junk food. Foods prohibited by this order were soft drinks, gum, and candy with no food value. Hi-C and milk replaced Coke and Sprite as the most popular drinks to have with lunch. Fruit juice machines also replaced Coke machines around the school.

Another result of the junk food ban was an increase in the prices of other foods sold. The cafeteria lost the profits it had been able to make through selling the outlawed edibles in the past. Therefore, it was forced to raise prices on other foods. A hot lunch, for example, rose from 75¢ to 85¢. A la carte food prices also rose substantially. The cafeteria had no choice, however, but to stop selling junk food or stop receiving government subsidies for other foods.

With this increase in prices, the students found it cheaper to go to a fast food restaurant to get the kind of lunch they wanted than to eat in the school cafeteria.

Seniors watch the cloc

Eleven forty just meant the end of fourth hour to South students up until this year. In previous years, seniors who had enough credits to graduate were able to leave school any time after second hour. However, due to a new regulation passed by the school board, this year's seniors were required to stay in school until 11:40, or the end of fourth hour. The rule caused many seniors to become clock-watchers.

Though this new system did not affect many students, for some it mea finding a job which did not requ starting work until noon. Most e ployers were understanding abo scheduling students to work aft 11:40, but reduced hours meant duced wages for students, putting squeeze on pocketbooks.

At the same time, the requireme enabled seniors to gain more cred toward graduation. This gave senio an advantage in being accepted the college of their choice.

Stick around!

Team effort!

South sets a precedent

The counseling center was completely revised this year. The goal of the new program was to improve relations between students and counselors, teachers and administrators.

As a part of this effort to improve student/staff relations, all sophomores were required to take a study hall. A teacher advisory team was then placed in each sophomore study hall. This advisory team led seminars, visual presentations and tours of the different departments around the school, in addition to being available for individual study assistance. Thus, sophomore study halls were beneficial in helping sophomores become adjusted to South.

The counseling center was also moved from the area near the administrators' offices to the bottom floor next to the learning center. A cheery decor, secluded location and additional office space all created a more personal atmosphere in which the students could discuss problems with their counselors.

The changes were all part of a pilot project in the district to involve students more with the professional staff.

Area provides weekend fun

It was a typical Friday night. Students had 48 hours to forget about homework, school and have some fun. But what was there to do on weekends that was out of the ordinary?

Various and diverse weekend activities were available within driving distance. With the addition of the Malibu Grand Prix, a mini race car track, students were able to find a different way of relaxing on the weekends.

During the warmer months, the increasingly popular sport of scuba diving proved to be a good way of breaking up the monotony of academic life. The Lake of the Ozarks, as well as several lakes in Arkansas provided the scene for this sport.

A nearby stable, a country farm or even a vacant lot was transformed into a peaceful place for horseback riding for many lucky enough to own their own horses.

Cruising, the all-American sport, was also a favorite pastime of many Raiders, most of whom own cars. The vast amount of students driving around on Friday or Saturday night or stopping at McDonald's to see "everyone" made cruising the number one weekend activity.

Participants do overtime

"I expected it to be dull, but it was fun."
—Janet Mahoney

Summer vacation? For most students the end of the school year symbolizes relaxation, but for some students, the beginning of summer means summer clinics.

The Pacesetters went to Lawrence, Ks., for the American Drill Team Camp, which lasted 5 days with competition in 3 areas. The Drill Team won first in pom pon, second in marching and in dancing.

Hastings, Neb., was the sight of the Southettes' 5-day camp. Hard work was put in to improve marching, flag and performance skills.

Stuco officers attended the NASC/NASAA conference in Aurora, Col. Practicing leadership, learning fellowship, and getting the inactive student involved were points stressed.

Five DECA members participated in the DECA National Conference held in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. The members worked hard with DECA students from all over the country. South's DECA group campaigned successfully for the election of a former South student, George Taylor, for DECA National President.

A yearbook camp was held in Liberty, Mo. for yearbook editors. Layout styles, writing abilities, and photography were the main topics covered.

Play portrays true saga

"'Anne Frank' is not a story of desperation, but of hope."
—Mr. Swezey

"In spite of everything, I still believe that people are really good at heart." Those were the words of Mary Ramos in her role as Anne in South's fall play production of "The Diary of Anne Frank." The play, directed by Mr. Mark Swezey, was based upon a vivid, tender diary written by a young German-Jewish girl while hiding in Holland from the Nazis during World War II.

This was the true story of two persecuted Jewish families, the Franks and the Van Daans, and their desperate struggle to survive in the midst of the Third Reich. The families hid in a secret attic in an Amsterdam office building. Anne recorded her experiences in a diary that her father gave her on their first day in hiding. Two years later, the families were betrayed and discovered.

As the play began, Mr. Frank, the sole survivor of the ordeal, returned to the hiding place for a final farewell. He chanced upon Anne's diary as the setting turned back to the beginning of their refuge and the portrayal of the touching story.

The cast consisted of ten players who spent long hours researching their characters and rehearsing after school. "I have come to admire Anne a lot. I really enjoyed portraying her and thought the play was a success," said Mary Ramos. Performed November fifth thru the eighth, the play sold out all five productions. The cast celebrated after the closing performance with a bonfire party at Susan Hervey's farm.

Dance, game fill weekend

The excitement of Homecoming began with the nomination of candidates. Students then voted for the royalty honors announced at the half time coronation ceremonies on Friday, October 17.

The crowd waited anxiously as the band played the theme song "We've Only Just Begun". Cheers of excitement filled the air as Greg Culotta, master of ceremonies, announced the first royal couple, Scott Kirkendall and Mary Closser. The ecstatic crowd quieted quickly for the introduction of First Attendants, David Claflin and Cindi Englund. All eyes watched intently as Dwayne Boudreaux and Nicki Hoffman became the 1980 Homecoming King and Queen. Reigning king and queen, Scott Lawder and Jeannie Swain, crowned the winners. The queen and her court were swarmed by well-wishers offering congratulations.

Robyn Nordin, the Goldette Senior President, coordinated the preparations for Homecoming. Melanie Bliss, chairman of the StuCo Social Committee, was in charge of the Homecoming Dance on the following night. "W.S.B." performed at the dance and provided a variety of music for the evening's entertainment. Homecoming candidate, Vicki Winkler, summed up the weekend saying, "It's the most exciting thing of my senior year."

Royalty selected for sweetheart

"I can't believe I was actually chosen," remarked Stephanie Dunshee after the culmination of the Sweetheart weekend. February 20 was a busy weekend starting with a pep assembly where the eight candidates were presented in various renditions of trash bags. At the basketball game Friday evening against Northwest, Stephanie Dunshee was announced Sweetheart Queen and Lori Owings and Leigh Morrow, first and second attendants respectively. Kate depicts stage life

"Being in the musical is like living in a big family"
—Roberta Ricci, sr.

Kiss Me Kate, a musical version of The Taming of the Shrew by William Shakespeare, was a very enjoyable and satisfying play. The play centered around the two lead performers of a production of The Taming of the Shrew. Scenes took place on and off the stage, presenting two stories to follow.

On stage, Sonja Hanschu, sr., portrayed the seemingly untameable woman, Catherine. Andy McCarl played her suiter Petruchio. Off stage was Lilli who has newly returned to the theater. Andy was Fred, Lilli's ex-husband. Conflict between these two characters was the main storyline. Their fighting carries over onto the stage with comic tendencies.

The two gangsters, acted out by David Clafflin, sr., and Charlie Kenworthy, sr., provided much comical action. Their "stage debut" to keep Lilli from leaving the theater and their soft shoe number were hilarious.

The dancers did a fine job of dancing. Fred Nelson, who had a lead dance sequence to "It's too Darn Hot", did a superb job. The chorus was commendable.

"I loved every minute of it." said a smiling Sonja Hanschu. "The musical was so much fun, I just wish that it wasn't all over!" The cast members all had this opinion as did the dancers and chorus. Leigh Morrow expressed her view, "Hard work was a major part of every practice but the fun outweighed the work." For the chorus Barb Ball, jr., said that fun was the overall attitude of everyone.

Director of this year's musical was Mr. Mark Swezey with the chorus under the instruction of Ms. Marie Lerner.

Crews prepare for shows

"The Shrew crew painted a whole town in a day!"
—Donna Burke, sr

The musical, yes everyone remembers the musical. The fine acting, dancing and singing were all memorable, but what about the set? The crew put in many hours constructing the set to create just the right mood. There were many crews and crew members.

The ticket crew mapped out the entire auditorium and marked each seat accordingly. This crew, which was headed by Robyn Nordin, also sold the tickets and made sure that each cast's family had tickets.

The program is a part of the musical that many people took for granted. Dianna Hakima had the difficult task of designing the cover herself.

The set was started months before the play was actually put on. Set crew head, Eric Frischer, spent about four hours a night on construction of the set. This year instead of the usual one set, Kiss Me Kate had four. Donna Burke painted the entire set. "Working for the crew was a lot of fun, but with little recognition." said Donna Burke, sr. "We (the crew) put in many hours each week and not many of the student body knew who we were. But all in all it was a worth while experience." This seemed to be the overall attitude of the crew.

The mood of the crew was one of hard work and togetherness. Because so many hours were spent with one another, togetherness was a must. If one of the crew fell behind in his duties then someone else who was ahead would help them with no prompting from an authoritative figure.

So next time you see a play just remember the people behind the scenes who are giving cues and who put together all the background set.

Heritage acknowledges seniors

Each year the Heritage Yearbook Staff recognizes the outstanding achievements of seniors through the selection of a Heritage Royalty. "Heritage Royalty attempts to take the popularity factor out of the election process. Students who have served their school by being involved and getting good grades deserve recognition," said Mrs. Linda Barber, yearbook adviser.

Staff members sorted through the piles of senior summaries and selected forty students with superior involvement in extracurricular activities and achievements in scholastics. Numbers were then assigned to each summary and juniors on the yearbook staff voted to obtain the anonymous top ten boys and ten girls.

The candidates' pictures and summaries were displayed in the front hall before election. David Claflin and Sonja Hanschu were elected 1981 Heritage Royalty King and Queen. First attendants were Paul Giordano and Leigh Morrow, with Kevin Kelly and Kathy Derks chosen as Second attendants. Other nominees were Lynn Bechtel, Brent Clum, Katie Field, Ken Glickstein, Sharon Hatcher, Joyce Hill, Dan Hurwitz, John Landshof, Patty Lee, Ted Manson, Andy McCarl, Robyn Nordin, Mike O'Brien and Janet Trentman.

"Heritage Royalty selection is a difficult process but the staff did a good job," said Ann Jacobson, Student Life editor for the yearbook.

NEWS: Hopes rise with election

"With the election of Ronald Reagan the country seems like it is getting rid of its feeling of malaise."—Eric Volk, sr.

What and who were in the news? The presidential elections, the hostages in Iran, the toxic waste in Wyandotte County and the triumph of the Royals all flashed across the front page this past year.

The presidential elections, held on the first Tuesday in November, held everyone's attention. Bumper stickers, posters and T.V. commercials kept the public informed. Ronald Reagan, in a surprise landslide, beat the incumbent President Jimmy Carter. One of the key issues of the election was the fate of the Iranian hostages.

The hostages in Iran were held for 444 days. They were released on January 21, 1981 which was the Inaugaration Day for President Reagan. Fellow Americans across the United States enthusiastically displayed yellow ribbons to welcome the hostages home. A variety of parades, telecasts and ceremonies marked their return.

Many Johnson Countians were worried about their homes when Kansas officials picked a spot in Johnson County to deposit some toxic waste materials. This toxic waste w in Wyandotte County before transfer was made.

JOBS: Students earn and learn

"Working is a great way to get experience in the business world."—Therese Mullin, sr.

Jobs played an important part in students' lives—a part as important as school. Many students went to school for four hours and then went off to work for eight. Others took classes all seven, working a total of 25-30 hours after school.

A job in addition to school meant long nights doing homework. Every worker knew of the hours spent finishing a theme or trig assignment. Many teachers disregarded or resented the fact that students worked, while many job supervisors scheduled without regard to school work and activities.

Activities became the opponent of jobs. After-school activities like clubs, youth groups and sports forced students to make choices between their jobs and participating after school. According to Sally Alberg, sr. "My jo and my activities suffer because don't have enough time to do both. Many students, who needed the extr cash, quit their team sports to work.

Income was necessary for weeken fun. Students needed the weeken for entertainment. Movies and musi two of the major forms of entertain ment, cost more and more.

Students found work in many di ferent places. Metcalf South and Oa Park malls were two of the mos common places of employment. Re taurants also provided a place t work.

With the rising price of gasoline students needed extra cash to kee their cars moving.

Jobs were a source of money an education.

BELIEFS:
Youth groups aid students

"They help build strong friendships which can be difficult to form in a large school."—Stacie Stoltz, sr.

Religion was a strong force in the lives of many students. Religious youth groups were activities these students enjoyed. There were four main youth groups: Young Life, Boys' F.C.A. (Fellowship of Christian Athletes), Girls' F.C.A. and B.B.Y.O. (B'nai Brith Youth Organization).

Young Life was a Christian youth group held on Monday nights. The leaders, Tom Brawner and Kurt Johnson, did crazy things such as swallow goldfish and shave their legs. Singing was a major part of the nights' activities. The end of the evening was used to talk about Christianity.

Boys' and Girls' F.C.A. were Christian groups dedicated to the athletic students. Wednesday nights were set aside for this group. Discussions, games and guest speakers headed t list of events. Leaders of the bo group were Mr. Bruce Bove, Mr. T Burkindine and Mr. John Shore. Lea er of the girls' group was Mrs. Jo Shore.

The B'nai Brith Youth Organizati was a Jewish youth group. This org nization, B.B.Y.O., sponsored all kin of events. Football, basketball, partie and community projects were thin done by B.B.Y.O. These students g together Friday and Saturday nights.

Religious youth groups were a f way to get involved, meet new pe ple and to learn about religion. The groups were for those searching f as well as for those who were w established in their beliefs.

ASSEMBLIES: Pep rallies enliven day

" . . . an entertaining break from school."—Jeff Berg, jr.

Assemblies provided momentary relief from the monotonous schedule of assignments and tests. Students were glad for the break from classes, yet trudged down the hallways to the gym to sit in their assigned places, anticipating a lifeless, boring hour.

Assemblies opened with the school song as the pep band provided music throughout for the enjoyment of the audience. Cheerleaders added life to the introduction of teams through a side presentation of comical photos of coaches in a game show atmosphere. In a skit introducing Homecoming candidates, boys bedecked in girls' clothes offered a hilarious variation from the normal routine.

Cheerleaders and yell leaders led the audience in cheers for victory an performed various skits. Th Raiderettes, NJROTC, Flag Team an Drill Team performed their intricat routines. "This year the assemblie were well planned and executed, said Dan Mai, jr.

Special assemblies for the presenta tion of awards and the recognition o outstanding students and a sympo sium on energy took place in th auditorium. NIGHT LIFE: Kids lively on weekends

" . . . a chance to relax and have fun with friends."
—Janet Trentman, sr.

The school days seemed so long, drawn out and boring, so students filled their free time on wekends with many activities to get away from the pressures and tensions of school. As Friday rolled around, students' attentions were centered on the upcoming weekend. Friends made arrangements for the coming nights. The dull, daily routines of homework, lectures and nerve-wracking tests were put aside as students anticipated the few precious days off.

"It was time for relaxation in a variety of ways," said John Martin, junior. To many students the weekends were a means of revival, of recuperation from the long school week.

Football and basketball games were a place to converse with friends and cheer the teams on to victory. Post-game activities varied from parties to pizza or any one of a number of entertainment alternatives. Dates, concerts, cruising, shopping, school parties and trips to the Plaza or Crown Center were a few of the means of enjoyment and development of fond memories spent with friends that will be cherished forever.

Students were excited and restless for a small break from school. As the nights faded into the past, Monday came and the students returned to their studies and again looked anxiously for the following weekend.

FASHION: Preppy makes comeback

"These are the most comfortable styles in years."
—Kim Crawford, sr.

Remember the last time Mom or Dad took out their high school yearbook and reminisced about those "good old days"? Did you laugh or make jokes when you looked at their clothes? Well, if so take a good look around school and in your closet . . . then once more take a look at those old pictures.

The classics, better known as "preppie", once again hit, and peoples' wardrobes changed drastically. Oxfords, turtlenecks, monogrammed shetlands, kilts, knee socks, penny loafers and topsiders were a part of the "Preppie" attire. Not only did clothes change the fashion scene, but also an assortment of accessories and hairstyles came into view. French braids, barpins, ribbons, barrettes and bows completed the ultimate prep look.

The classic look not only affect the teenagers, but adults and ev small children participated in the ne fashion. Posters were made and al a Prep Handbook was written stati the do's, don't and how to's of bei a prep.

Many people do not know t classic look has been and always w be in style. Take the kilt for instanc Scottish men have been weari them for ages, and in London the t tan plaid is as common as den here. The only significant chan made was that the clothes becam more costly by the year. How ma parents had an Izod alligator or Po player crawling across their chest, a label on their derriere?

So, take a peek at yourself, a ask that vital question, "Are you prep or aren't you?"

Music dominates leisure hours

Music was the craze. Everyone had a favorite song or group. The radio was the most important part of a car. But a tragedy occurred in the music world, John Lennon died. This caused great controversy and dismay. Radio stations played Beatles' music for hours at a time and one Sunday for ten minutes radio stations across America stopped broadcasting in honor of John Lennon.

From John Lennon to Earth Wind and Fire, The Cars to Ted Nugent, no matter what the group or style, every person had a favorite kind of music.

Music and stereos were synonymous. A large watt system was every students' dream, but a small modular system suited most people. Sitting at night just listening to music put the mind at ease.

New Wave music moved into the area to a degree. Bars began to have New Wave nights, radio stations played New Wave hits. Three popular New Wave bands were Devo, B-52's, and the Police.

Rock, hard and mellow, was as popular as ever. For top forty lovers, every Sunday the top-forty was played. For hard rock music lovers, KY 102 played a count down of their favorite music on Sundays.

Students made perfect music lovers. Music kept them occupied when there was nothing to do. If a student was depressed, he just flipped on the radio. If a student was rowdy with no outlet, he could put on his favorite album. Students let music keep them entertained.

Movies offer fun, variety

For many, relaxing with a date or a oup of friends at a movie proved be a satisfying after-school escape. ea theatres provided a wide variety entertainment ranging from light mor to deep suspense, from inti- ate love stories to horror pictures. me movies drew vast crowds while hers were only sparsely attended.

As Halloween drew near, viewers ere bombarded with such run-of- e-mill horror films as "Schozoid" nd "Motel Hell", which brought rth laughs instead of screams. New oductions released around the win- r holidays flooded the movie mar- et with such humorous features as Popeye", "Stir Crazy" and "Seems ke Old Times." The directorial debut f Robert Redford proved successful "Ordinary People", starring Mary yler Moore and Donald Sutherland, as highly praised by critics. It was a ear for sequels to popular movies uch as "Smokey and the Bandit II" nd "The Empire Strikes Back", the ontinuation of the Star Wars saga. vid fans of the science-fiction series ere glad to learn that still more is to me.

The versatility of actors and ac- esses was shown by the increased umber of productions released this ear, geared to the likes of the view- rs. Extravagant sets, scenery and odern visual effects caused soaring roduction costs. Inflation seemed to onstantly push up box-office prices, et people were willing to pay for ood movies.

South Poll

Southern hospitality shown

Twenty-six smiling faces, and fifty-two helping hands were the main ingredients of the Show-Me-South Club. For numerous years, the group has welcomed new students to the school and has tried to relieve some of the nervous tensions students get from being "new". Mr. Phil Larson, the major backbone of the club, tried to guide the girls in their activities. Along with Mr. Larson, a new counselor, Dr. Betty Hall, assisted in the group by adding her advice from previous experience in other schools. Some of the events the club participated in included a Christmas luncheon for new students, tours of the building for the Advisory Board and hosting foreign exchange students. A main attraction was the buddy system, in which new students received a Show-Me-South Club member as their "buddy". The "buddy" would call them, eat lunch with them, etc. In other words, it was a "love them and not leave them system." Fundraising activities, club parties and early morning breakfasts were a few of the events which united the girls.

Many people may have wondered what the Patriettes do. As the official hostess group, the Patriettes welcomed outside visitors to the school. Two years ago, when the group started, the girls carried a lot of responsibility throughout the year. Service work took up most of their time and at least two-thirds of the money raised was given to needy outside charities. The Patriette Club was a place for people to make friends and participate without a great deal of time commitment. At least one-third of the group was actively involved in another extra-curricular activity. "The Patriettes are a great group of girls who have fun working together and serving others," commented Mr. John Seevers, advisor of the group.

"Helping people and having fun doing it is what Patriettes is all about."

Club hosts exchange students

"Ein Mitglied des International club's zu sein ist spitze," said Claudia Rechsteiner. In any language, the revival of the International Club proved exciting for all who participated.

The group reappeared after a year of absence to provide an environment of friendship for the exchange students. This year the club hosted five students: Suzanne Krueger from Germany, Claudia Rechsteiner from Switzerland, Christina Castelli from Italy, Henrich Nordstrom from Sweden and Craig McLachlan from New Zealand. They were sponsored by various organizations to go to school, improve their English and learn about American culture.

International Club, sponsored by Mr. Charles Underwood, held meetings every two weeks, to serve the needs of the exchange students. In addition, parties were held to demonstrate various American traditions. On Halloween, for example, the club sponsored a party where the students experienced bobbing for apples, hearing ghost stories and taking a trip to a haunted house downtown. Other activities included: a fall picnic, a Christmas party and a leaf-raking fund-raiser.

The members of the club had the opportunity to make many new friends from other countries and from school. "I met all the international kids, but I also got to know a lot of people from South that I never met before," said Lisa Brackett, jr.

Another benefit of International Club was the understanding that grew from meeting people from other countries. Christina Castelli said, "When I met people here at South, they said, 'Oh, you're from Italy.' I hope now they understand better about my country." Many of the stereotypes concerning people of other countries were found to be untrue.

International Club helps strengthen ties between different cultures. It helps us to see that we are all basically alike from one country to another."

StuCo was not just a name

Was StuCo just a name or was it really a functioning organization? The answer to this question is most definitely "yes", StuCo was a working group of people. StuCo represented the student body's interests and strove to carry out the tasks they were elected to do. When asked what Melanie Bliss, StuCo member, thought about StuCo, she replied, "I think of kids representing their classes and the school to get things accomplished for them."

StuCo meetings were held in a relaxed friendly atmosphere, thus enabling students' suggestions and opinions to be dealt with in a more open, receptive manner. Everyone had an idea to express or an opinion to voice and occasionally everyone got to talking at once. Yet, somehow, order was always made out of the confusion.

The StuCo officers and Mr. Bill Tiegreen, vice-principal, attended a StuCo clinic in Colorado last summer in an effort to improve StuCo and incorporate new ideas into its format.

StuCo had many goals and plans for improving the students' year. One of the most important objectives was to get the students involved in school life. They accomplished this goal by holding the Homecoming dance and elections, holding a barn dance and sponsoring a blood drive to which fifty-five people contributed. Many students commented the Homecoming dance was the best dance in the last ten years. The attendance more than doubled over the last year and they made about three-hundred dollars. StuCo also planned the representative and sophomore class elections and was in charge of directory sales.

StuCo advisors were Ms. Carolyn Simmons and Mr. Bruce Roach.

Categories team shares knowledge

"It takes a person who is interested in a variety of subjects and retains facts well to be a good Categories member, said Ms. Barbara Seibel, sponsor. The Categories team, consisting of ten to twelve trivia-minded students, practiced every week in order to represent South well at the district meets. Every two weeks five students were chosen on the basis of basic knowledge and participation at practices to compete against the other four district high schools. Meets were held at Mohawk Instructional Center. Here, they were taped to be broadcast on Telecable of Overland Park. Competitions had a game show-like atmosphere, as students were asked questions by Larry Wagner, moderator, and received points for answering questions correctly.

Each game consisted of two, twelve-minute rounds with a two-minute break in between. During this break, one of the teams was assigned a presentation of school activities. The second round, called a lightning round, differed from the first round in that the questions were not directed to a specific team. Instead, the teams had to hit a button to win control of the question.

At Monday practices, Ms. Seibel and Scott Nations, captain, helped the team prepare for meets. Every member brought ten questions they had researched to pose to the rest of the team. In this way, the team's knowledge was expanded.

Ms. Seibel, sponsor for the past three years, felt that she had an excellent team this year. She said, "Participants in Categories are a nice group of students, and I enjoy working with them."

Members were recruited though morning announcements and the return of a great number of last year's team. This was due to the great comradery felt by the students. "Besides the good friends that I made on the team, we got the opportunity to meet a lot of people from other schools," said Scott Sher.

"The trivia we learn about may be totally irrelevent at the time, but at least it is fun. Sometimes that knowledge turns out to be useful," said Jeff Berg.

"Everybody pools their knowledge to make a great Categories team."—Scott Nations

Students share in business world

Over one hundred students learned about functioning in the business world this year as members of DECA, Distributive Education Clubs of America, or Office Education. In these courses, students learned about working with customers or skills needed for secretarial positions.

Ms. Vicki Jennings taught the DECA students methods of retailing through speakers, worksheets and actual marketing projects. The group sold Raider license plates, candy and candles. Seniors in DECA were required to work an average of fifteen hours a week at jobs that met strict requirements.

The high point of the DECA year was state contest held in the middle of April. After competing in district competition, winners went to Wichita to compete statewide. Seniors were required to write a manual on one of seven areas, general merchandising, apparel and accessories, finance and credit, food service, food marketing, oil and petroleum and advertising. These manuals were taken to the contest and judged. Other students took a written test and were then given a marketing problem to solve in an oral speech. The points received in both areas were added together to determine a winner. Other competions were sponsored by Pepsi-Cola, Phillips Petroleum, and Seven-Up Corporations. Also at Wichita, state officers were chosen. Officers serving this year from South were Joyce Hill, Vice-President, and Michele Watts, Secretary.

"DECA teaches you the art of handling other people."—Jani Pospisil

Office Education, like DECA, trained students in job-related skills. Ms. Loralee Wilson, besides instructing students during class, was responsible for finding the Office Ed. II students secretarial jobs. Ms. Wilson's students also went to hear speakers and to seminars. Students looking at office careers were given a sound experience in all aspects of this field.

Both DECA and Office Education offered students practical experience in the business world.

Groups support athletic teams

Who were the students behind the scenes at the swim team and wrestling team meets? Goodtimers and Pinners were staunch supporters of the two major sports teams.

In addition to loyally boosting the swim team's morale, the Goodtimers kept track of the swimmers' times and scores at every home meet. About fifteen of the sixty-three girls were needed to work each meet. Though no requirements were made, enough Goodtimers, sponsored by Mr. Bruce Bove, were almost always on hand to get the job done. As Robin Berg, senior, said, "This group has been a very good group, attendance-wise, this year."

At a meet one could easily spot a Goodtimer by her special t-shirt. A grey background with a green cartoon was the pattern designed for the group by Mike LaMonica, senior.

Fortunately, the Goodtimers were able to use new stop watches in timing the swimmers. This enabled the competitors to receive the fairest and the most accurate scores possible.

The Pinners provided their share of school spirit by faithfully supporting the wrestling team throughout all the wrestling matches. Sponsored by Mr. Guy Malone, they attended all of the meets and cheered the wrestlers on encouraging them to do their very best.

Aside from raising team spirit, the Pinners assisted in running the meets. They wrote the programs, ran the concession stands and decorated the gym. At times they also kept score and kept the records. Cheryl Carrigan, senior, summed it all up when she said, "Pinners was more than a cheering group."

"Pinners was an added incentive to school life."— Cheryl Carrigan

Besides cheering and assisting with the wrestling meets the Pinners conducted various fund-raising activities throughout the year. For example, they sold donuts in the cafeteria on Friday mornings and they also sold Raider key rings.

However, the Pinners were not the sole supporters of the wrestling team. The wrestling managers helped to keep the scores and the records, too. They also ran errands, distributed equipment and generally helped out in any way possible.

Goldettes supply the spirit

"Go South" and "Raiders" suddenly flashed out of the bleachers cheering the football team on to victory. The latest inspiration of the Goldettes, card tricks appeared in another show of spirit for the school.

Holding up cards in a row to spell out cheers was just one example of Goldettes' team spirit. They also decorated the football players' lockers before the games and each girl had "big brothers" from the football and basketball teams. As Evelyn Bisang, junior vice-president, said, "Goldettes is mainly a group of girls out to support the team and have a lot of fun doing it."

"Goldettes is a group of girls who support the team and have fun doing it."

—Evelyn Bisang

The Goldettes' second year was a good year. The group was smaller than the year before and, as a result, the girls were closer. They got to know each other better and formed friendships that were a big part of their lives. In addition to a smaller group, Goldettes had a new sponsor, Ms. Karen Hadel.

Besides, providing team spirit, Goldettes worked diligently to raise money for Homecoming and the Sweetheart Dance. Candy-sales, car-washes and program-sales were three projects they undertook to raise money.

Planning the ceremonies for Homecoming and Sweetheart was another responsibility entrusted to Goldettes. Robyn Nordin, president, was in charge of the Homecoming ceremony and Evelyn Bisang, junior vice-president, was in charge of the Sweetheart ceremony. Among other things they chose the theme, selected patterns for the girls' dresses, bought the crowns and flowers and supplied gifts for the winners.

However, most important, of all, Goldettes supported the teams and the school. Rain or shine, they were always present for the games, encouraging the players with their enthusiasm.

Raiderettes instill pride

Although they were the smallest performing group, the Raiderettes had the important job of announcing the Marching Band, drill team and flag team. They carried the banner at home football and basketball games, pep assemblies and parades.

This year, for the first time, the group was composed of all juniors. Another first was the change of uniform, a green and white skirt made reversable for versatility.

ganize their various activites and compose routines. These routines were performed at pre-game and half time activities of football games and before the basketball games.

Some of the activities the girls planned were dinners at each others' homes, exchanging birthday and Christmas gifts and the flower-selling fundraiser. They also designed their new outfits.

"1980 was our year for change."

—Becky Jones

Headed by Becky Jones, captain, and Ms. Marilyn Hubbard, sponsor, the Raiderettes were known for their enthusiasm and pride in their group. "Ms. Hubbard, although new to the job of sponsor, fit right into the group. Being young and enthusiastic, she is someone who helps us with our problems," said Betsy Goodnow. "I'm not an instigator, but an advisor," said Ms. Hubbard. She believed that it was the girls' job to or-

The squad practiced every day first and second hours, often with the band, flag team and drill team. They also worked many evenings after school. These hours were necessary to perfect their gun twirling and banner maneuvers.

Skills necessary to become a Raiderette were sharpness in marching, dexterity in gun routines, ability to get along with the rest of the group.

Friendship brings success

Hours of hard work and practice were put in by the Southette Flag Team. Many an early morning and late night were spent polishing their routines.

Of the many sophomore and junior girls who tried out, only twenty-nine made the Flag Team for their junior and senior years. Sue Rodgers, senior, was elected captain by the girls.

Each new girl on Flag Team was adopted as a little sister by a senior girl. The big sisters gave their little sisters gifts and sent them notes while remaining anonymous to the new girls. Many an attempt was made by the new girls to discover who their big sisters were. Yet, not until October 4 did the senior girls disclose who their little sisters were.

Close friendships were formed by the girls that will continue long after their days on the Flag Team are over. The friendly, caring attitude of the girls made Flag Team an experience never to be forgotten. When asked what she liked best about Flag Team, Christy Hammond, junior, said, "What I like most is the closeness."

The girls helped and supported each other from the start. They gave criticism when it was due, yet they did not hesitate to praise and encourage each other. The fact that only twenty-four of the twenty-nine girls were allowed to perform at each home football and basketball game was an added incentive for them to do their best.

It was easy to spot a "Flag Teamer" on almost any day of the week because of the assorted outfits they wore for the team. Every Thursday they stood out in their stylish skirts and vests and on Fridays they appeared in their white and yellow pep club skirts and matching sweaters.

The girls will never forget the good times and new experiences that were a part of Flag Team. Throughout all the hard work, the girls always enjoyed themselves.

Unity vital to drill team

They provided the color, precision and bright smiles at all home football and basketball games. They worked countless hours for numerous festivals during the year. They are the Pacesetter Drill Team, and they have maintained the Raider tradition of being the best.

The Pacesetters got off to a good start June 16 at a week-long drill team clinic held at K.U. The majority of the girls attended, providing a sound basis for basic marching and dancing techniques.

Under the guidance of Ms. Sharon Wiber, the year was a combination of new ideas and cherished traditions. A Halloween costume party, slumber parties, Christmas gift exchange and a dinner before each game were some of the special customs kept by the drill team. The new trends included new shoes for the basketball games, new Friday outfits and the new office of social chairmen. A special addition was that of Lisa Boothe, manager, whose job included getting music, running errands and helping the girls before performances. "She's just like a second Ms. Wiber," said Erin Hughes.

Rather than stressing just one area, the drill team provided a much more versatile performance by incorporating dance, high kick, marching and pom pon in their routines. Precision was obtained through sharpness and smoothness. Yet the most important element was uniformity of motions. Necessary to this was a good basic skill, willingness to work and many hours of hard practice.

Being a Pacesetter required much more than just good marching and dancing skills. Throughout the year the girls learned much about being patient, courteous and a better leaders. A very special aspect of drill team was the closeness the girls shared. "We're so close," was a phrase heard often from members of the group.

"Drill team performances only last two years, but the things we learn last forever."

Bands produce quality work

The crash of cymbals, the swell of horns and the trill of flutes were a medley of sounds heard echoing through the halls around the band room. Marching Band members were always hard at work practicing for their next performance.

Performances at halftime and participation in marching contests kept Marching Band occupied. One highlight of the year was Marching Band earning the best score in the competition in Warrensburg. Unfortunately, because of a state law, they were not able to receive a winning trophy. Yet, as a token of honor, the judges awarded Marching Band an "Esprit de corps" trophy.

Like every organized group, Marching Band had goals. As Patty Lee, senior, said, "The group member's goal is to have band as good or better than the year before. And, "Mr. Cochran's goal is for us to be our very best."

Early morning practices were a daily occurrence for Marching Band. They worked hard, along with Flag Team and Drill Team, to put together a superior performance for the next game. Still, good times were always a part of the group. As Sharon Hatcher, senior, said, "It's a high-quality, productive and very competitive group. Yet, while we work, we also have a lot of fun."

Marching Band members were a tight group. One group of members, the Band Mystics, formed a "spirit" organization. Basically, they had fun before, during and after all band functions. Their purpose, according to Mike Gafney, was to "sniff incense, listen to George Harrison music, meditate and never take life seriously."

Pep Band was also important. The members played for pep assemblies, rallies and basketball games. They also increased school spirit and played for Drill Team and Flag Team performances.

"It's a high quality, productive and very competitive group."

Cheerleaders add sparkle

At first glance, one wondered why those seemingly dangerous seats around the J.V. and Sophomore cheerleaders were always occupied. However, the loud voices, flinging arms and bright smiles radiated electricity and excitement that was hard to resist. The football, basketball and other atheletic events would not have been the same without them.

The two squads, consisting of eight girls each, worked hard to keep spirit high. In addition to cheering at football, basketball, cross country, gymnastics, swimming and other competions, the girls performed at pep assemblies on Friday mornings, and practiced from 6:30 until 7:30 every Monday and Thursday morning. New cheers, made up by the girls, were taught each week.

The girls enjoyed the hard work, though. "Through cheering you get to know what's going on in sports, and it's a good outlet for energy," said Jackie Marter. For Sharon Derks, Sophomore captain, being a cheerleader meant "involvment and very close friends. You have to get along, or it just won't work."

Many traditions were invloved with the cheerleaders, from outfits, to shoelaces, to the kind of cheers that were permitted. One special tradition was that of big sisters, whose purpose was to provide inter-squad closeness. The girls exchanged gifts and gave corsages to their "sisters." "You can always talk over your problems with your big sister. They're always there," said Ann Pinkerton.

Ms. Linda Segebrecht and Ms. Katie Alexander, were two people very important to the cheerleaders. Ms. Segebrecht, J.V. sponsor, and Ms. Alexander, Sophomore sponsor, came to games and practices, organized the squads and enforced rules.

Groups live, breathe sports

For a few months, a good football player has to live and breathe football. Saturday games, cross country running, afterschool practices and the agony of being number one are a few of the obligations.

But when have people taken the time to think of how a cheerleader lives and breathes all year long? Varsity cheerleaders are chosen through tedious tryouts and tough competition the previous year. Eight special girls were chosen to represent all school sports and activities. A clinic held at Baker University was attended by all girls June 22-25. The squad received the Award of Excellence, and Cindi Englund, senior, was named the All-American Cheerleader out of the 400 girls in attendance. The summer practice was only beginning, for every other day of the summer vacation, the cheerleaders practiced early in the morning for several hours. Once the summer routine was through, the school season began and their schedule increased. Friday morning pep assemblies, 6:30 a.m. practices with the yell leaders, seventh hour practice every day, weekend and daily sports name only a few of the weekly commitments the girls had. "We cheer for almost all school activities," said Lori Owings. Lori Owings, captain and Vicki Winkler, co-captain, headed the squad with Mrs. Linda Segebrecht as their sponsor. "We all practically live together, for we always have a cheerleading event to attend," said Vicki Winkler.

Not only do the girls of the school promote school spirit, but also eight boys help encourage pride. The yell leaders helped the cheerleaders at the football and basketball games and were usually seen in a pyramid position or in some challenging stunt. On Fridays, the boys wore brightly colored uniforms to encourage participation at the games. "We try to get everyone to participate in the games," said Greg Nichols, senior.

Getting the student body to cheer at games was not always an easy task for the two groups. And most of the time, the common student did not realize that this elite group put much of their lives into the school.

"We are like a family."

Administration notes decline

One problem that faced the administration was declining enrollment and how to deal with it. The size of the student body decreased less then anticipated, but the effects of this change became apparent. Dr. David Pendleton said, "Our biggest challenge is to meet students' needs and keep the curriculum updated, but at the same time cut back on staffing and budgeting." Although no classes were discontinued, the administrators were forced to begin considering the importance of certain courses and programs.

Dr. Robert Welch left South to become district coordinator of the Shawnee Mission District Pilot Counseling Program. Mr. Bruce Roach was the new addition to the administration, becoming an assistant principal.

"We must find solutions to new problems, but maintain the standards of education that have been established."

—Dr. David Pendleton

Another important job for the administrators was organizing the school's sefl-evaluation. South is a member of the North Central Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges, and one obligation of members is a complete evaluation of the school once every seven years. Students, parents, teachers and administrators formed several committees to study different aspects of education at South and write conclusive reports for the evaluation.

Centers help in planning

"What will I do in the future?" "Where do I go after high school?" "What kind of career should I choose?" These are questions students often ask themselves. Possible answers to such questions could be found through two Student Services at South: the counseling center and the career center.

The counseling center's move from the area of the administrators' offices to the first floor provided extra room in the counseling department. This extra space allowed for an entire room full of information on colleges. Students were able to look through catalogs on the colleges of their choice during free time. A series of video tapes on various colleges across the country were also available in this area. The new section made planning for future education an easier task.

"The career center helped me realize the jobs available that I would be interested in."

—Bill Vogt, sophomore

Students were also given another resource for planning their futures. The career center's program was offered again this year. Bill Vogt, soph., said, "The career center helped me clarify what I am good at and how I can apply that to choosing a career. It also taught me about what to do in a job interview."

New teacher likes variety

Mr. Bill Grossnickle was a new face in the production center this year. Formerly a science teacher at Nallwood Junior High, he used to run the audio-visual department there. But despite this training, Mr. Grossnickle still came here with a feeling of inexperience.

Variety in the day to day work of the production center made his new position interesting and enjoyable. It took him out of the confines of the classroom and gave him more freedom. Mr. Grossnickle immediately saw endless opportunities for projects he could never attempt to start at Nallwood for lack of time. Single concept video tapes were made which showed one idea, such as how to sew a button hole. This prevented an entire class from having to crowd around a small area in order to see a demonstration.

"The variety is just unreal."
—Mr. Bill Grossnickle

If the variety was not enough for Mr. Grossnickle, the good feeling he gained when helping people was. He enjoyed being able to help people with dire needs. When something had to be done, it had to be done right away; and consequently, Mr. Grossnickle was never left feeling unneeded. Any breakdown was a catastrophy. "It's nice to solve a crisis," said Mr. Grossnickle, quickly adding, "but if I don't know how to solve it . . . . " Mr. Grossnickle soon shrugged this off, however, saying, "I may spend the entire year trying to learn what Mr. Art Clements had been doing for years. But he's not here, and I gotta do it."

Vandals leave their mark

Vandalism proved to be a very discouraging and time-consuming problem for custodians throughout the year. Many man hours were spent cleaning-up or repairing property damage. Students from South and surrounding schools were usually discovered to be responsible. The most obvious indications of vandalism were broken windows, yard damage, graffiti, broken doors, and some fire damage in restrooms.

The lighter side of the problem was the numerous attempts by students to T.P. the school. The custodians were often tipped off about T.P. plans by other students. On several occasions

"Pranks like T.P. jobs are funny, but there's no excuse for vandalism."

—Mr. John Tiedemann

the night shift custodians hid around the school yard and waited for the pranksters to strike. When they came, the custodians tried to catch them. Forewarned police officers were sometimes waiting, blocking off the parking lot exits, in case the custodians were not successful. John Tiedemann, night shift manager, commented, "If we caught them we just made them clean up their mess or pay for whatever damage they had done. Unless some kids did real damage, we preferred to deal with them ourselves and leave the police out of it."

Sophs learn writing skills

A student's sophomore year is a year for introduction and preparation. This held true especially for the Sophomore English classes.

The Sophomore English curriculum consisted of reading Julius Ceasar, A Separate Peace, The Pearl, Of Mice and Men, The Crucible, Lord of the Flies, and All Quiet on the Western Front.

The objective of this curriculum was to teach students to analyze works of literature. It was also designed to teach them how to discuss and write about different literary works.

"A student can't really do well in Junior or Senior English without having a good background in Sophomore English."

—Mr. Keith Allen

In past school years, sophomores were exposed mainly to creative writing but their Sophomore English class prepared them for future analytical writing that they will use throughout their high school and college careers.

Personalities shape course

As Ms. Chris Becicka tap-danced her way into her classroom, Mr. Jeff Harryman warmed up his tennis elbow in a room down the hall. What do they have in common? They are bound together by the sole purpose of teaching Junior English.

Junior English – that sounds ominous in itself. Yet, when taught by Ms. Chris Becicka, Ms. Mildred DeVries, Mr. Jeff Harryman, Ms. Jane Long, Ms. JoAnn Murnane and Ms. Joyce Smith, one is sure to discover some added excitement.

Since the abolition of mini-courses a few years back, English teachers have been able to put personal touches into the curriculum by adding their own units. Less time is wasted without mini-courses, and more material can be covered in the short amount of time available. Consequently, most of the teachers added a unit of their own sometime during the year. Mr. Harryman, for one, taught a biblical allusions unit "due to popular demand", as he put it. Whatever unit each teacher added, it gave a change to the usual pace of Junior English.

"The program emphasizes the basics with added emphasis on writing skills, even more so than years past."

Teachers' wits liven class

Creative is one word that described the Senior English Department. All four teachers were known for original teaching techniques that seemed different from the average English class. The teachers strived to improve what they had taught in the past.

Mr. David Gray, known for his impersonations of characters in literature, tried to make his classes entertaining and educational at the same time. He said, "You have to sell people on literature for them to really appreciate it."

Ms. Mary Alice Daniels, also affectionately called the "Bionic Bun" and

"English can be a little bland unless you put some life into it."

—Mr. David Gray

"Attila the Bun" because of her hairstyle, put her M.A.D. plan for teaching into action. Three points of this plan were her daily assignment outlines, a reading program, and options for classroom work.

Both Ms. Rowena Turk and Ms. Connie Volk tried to involve their students in both the learning and teaching aspects of classroom activities. Ms. Turk's A.P. students each led a discussion and evaluative activity over a literary work which they were assigned. Ms. Volk had her students present plays in class with costumes and props in order to generate interest in the material.

Participation helps program

Foreign exchange students, new programs and trips to foreign countries dominated this year's foreign language program.

Five foreign exchange students lived and went to school here. They were Cristina Castelli, sr., from Italy, Susanne Krueger, sr., from West Germany, Craig McLachlan, sr., from New Zealand, Henrick Nordstrom, sr., from Sweden and Claudia Rechsteiner, sr., from Switzerland. Three of these students were able to attend South through our newly-developed AFS (American Field Service) chapter.

AFS, or International Club, met every month. Through this program students were able to get a closer look at other countries and cultures. It enabled them to actually visit and live in foreign countries.

"We really do have a lot of things going on in our department."

—Ms. Betty Willits

Language for Everyone was a new course offered this year. A trilingual course, its main purpose was to expose the student to French, Spanish and German for travel. The course centered on practical uses of these languages and followed a special trilingual text. Each language was studied for six weeks. According to Ms. June Farson, "This is the only course of this type in the district."

Students themselves became quite involved in this year's program. French, as well as Spanish students took group trips to foreign countries. Jerry Casidy, sr. and Steve Murray, jr., traveled on their own over the summer, and many students housed people from other countries.

New system saves time

The Math Department received a new computer for the Computer Science classes this year.

The new computer is a Data General Eclipse. It is different from the computer used in previous years in that students no longer had to use the card system in programming. Before, students had to write their computer program keys onto cards. These cards then had to be taken elsewhere to be run on a computer. Using this system, students had to wait at least one or more days to find out the results of their programs, or even if their programs were correct.

"The new system will provide improved student access to computer facilities."

—Mr. Ray Dennis

With the new computer, the students were able to enter the program directly, and also interact with the machine directly. The students no longer had to wait days to get the results of their programs. In this way the computer was beneficial to them.

The computer was intended strictly for instructional use. It was also beneficial to Physics, Biology and Social Studies classes as well as Computer Science classes.

Tours prove educational

A school bus pulls up in the parking lot in front of SMESL. Thirty excited elementary school children get off the bus and wait for their SMESL guides to take them on a nature walk.

The guides, who are field tech students, each take about twelve anxious kids on their journey through SMESL. The kids look fascinated as their SMESL guide points out the various plant and animal inhabitants of the Shawnee Mission Environmental Science Lab.

SMESL tours have been a tradition

"It teaches the kids the fundamentals of nature and a respect for nature they wouldn't get otherwise."

—Lori Winchell, jr.

for field tech students for many years. These tours are beneficial to both the field tech students who act as guides and the elementary school children whom they take through SMESL. For example, in order to lead a tour, the field tech students must learn the names of and some facts about the plants and animals in SMESL. The guides, in turn, must point out and tell about these inhabitants to the elementary school children. In this way, SMESL tours have been a learning experience for both field tech and elementary school students.

Mad Republican party strikes

One main goal of the Social Science Staff was to encourage students to participate in subject related activities outside of class. One group of election-conscious students formed their own political party called the "Mad Republicans," much to the chagrin of the staunch Democrats on the Social Science Staff. The group, led by John Chapline, Rusty Etzenhouser, and Kurt Ellenberger, seniors, used radical methods to publicize their beliefs. Twice a certain democratic teacher woke up to find his yard littered with Republican campaign signs. The Social Science office was plastered with Republican-oriented bumper stickers. Rusty Etzenhouser said,

"You don't have to be eighteen to get involved in politics."

—John Chapline

"Since we're not old enough to vote, we figured we would get involved in the political process our own way." The morning after Reagan defeated Carter, the "Mad Republicans" arrived to mock the Democrats and offer them black armbands to mourn their party's loss.

The Social Science Department had quarterly themes, and students had opportunities to work in candidates' campaign headquarters, listen to different speakers, or work in the district-wide mock United Nations Conference. Two courses added to the curriculum were Advanced Placement American History and Introduction to Social Studies.

Students set life goals

The objectives of the NJROTC program this year were to help students learn the role of the military in our society, to prepare them for possible careers in the military and to teach them certain values.

According to Commander Robert Haggerton, the NJROTC program showed students that although the military is a necessary part of society in the United States, it does not control our society. The role of the military as a source of protection to our nation was emphasized to NJROTC students. NJROTC also emphasized understanding of Constitutional law and respect for the Federal aspect of the Constitution.

In addition to this, NJROTC was an exploration of a possible career. If a student was considering the military as a career, he had the opportunity to learn what military life is really like through NJROTC.

"NJROTC teaches students to have a goal in life centered around leadership."
—Commander Robert Haggerton

The NJROTC program also taught students the values of patriotism, orderliness, leadership and setting personal goals. Susan Bagnall, sr., said, "I have more self-confidence and a sense of leadership because of NJROTC." The traditional practices of raising the flag at home football games and of weekly inspections played an important part in teaching the NJROTC students these values.

Instructors teach CPR

Amid the same old routine of years and years past, the PE classes had a new unit on CPR. For the first year, this unit was a district requirement.

CPR, or cardiopulmonary resuscitation, was taught in all the PE classes. It involved practicing on dummies, taking a written exam and passing a practical application test.

"We are all certified CPR instructors."

—Ms. Sherri Brosseau

The district bought all the necessary equipment for the school to teach this unit, and all PE instructors attended sessions this summer in order to become certified CPR instructors. This unit not only gave added interest to students, but also offered a practical skill which could possibly save someone's life.

Students gain experience

The curriculum of the Business Department had three major objectives this year: to offer a general education in business, to meet the needs of students who plan business majors in college and later to enter business careers, and to help prepare students who plan to enter business-oriented jobs right after high school.

According to Ms. Lois Supple, department head, in order to prepare students for entering the business world, the department kept all the latest equipment used in offices on hand. For example, IBM Selectric typewriters, calculators, two Radio Shack computers, and the new computer in the Math department were available for the use of business students.

"We try to keep abreast of all new equipment in the business office."

The 16 terminals of the new "Eclipse" computer in the Math department were used in Introduction to Data Processing. COBOL, or Common Business Oriented Language, was taught using this computer.

Two Radio Shack computers were also used in teaching word processing and data entry to Office Education students.

By having the opportunity to work with new equipment, South students were better prepared to enter careers in business.

Knowledge for life is goal

Students in Home Economics courses had opportunities to use their knowledge differently than in most classes. They were able to apply what they learned in class to real-life situations, instead of showing their skills only on tests.

In the Foods Department, the Entertainment with Foods classes gave a breakfast coffee for parents and planned a Faculty Tea for the holidays. The Survival Skills class applied what they learned first and second quarter to a complete Thanksgiving dinner.

Students in Child Development, Exploring Childhood or Personal and Family Relationships had practical experience with children while learning about them. Some little sisters and brothers of students and children from elementary schools often came to South during the school day. Activities for every hour were planned for the children, so that students did anything from fingerpainting to eating treats with a child.

In the Clothing classes, many students' goals were to enter a project in the Research and Development Forum. Ms. Karen Hadel said, "This show represents an opportunity for students to compete and compare with students from the whole district."

Instructor changes pace

Driver's Education and Auto Tech classes helped carry on age-old classroom patterns and still managed to add new life into their programs.

Mr. Keith Barnhart was a new member of the Driver's Education staff. He came from SM West to teach here the first three hours of the day. The remainder of the day he taught at SM West. He found adjusting to the new school fairly easy, as the programs at SM West and South are almost identical. Still, as Mr. Barnhart said, "All kids must learn to cope with a teacher's idiosyncrasies."

Under-the-hood work was done in the Auto Tech classes. Auto Tech I students completed section by section studies of the automobile with the aid of a textbook. Auto Tech II students were involved in actually fixing cars and were permitted to bring their own cars to school in order to work on them.

Quality upheld by teachers

Improvement and growth were on the minds of the Arts and Industrial Arts teachers as they created more opportunities for their students. For the photography classes, a new darkroom was built. This facility included new equipment for color film development and printing. Mr. Guy Malone said, "The darkroom has a great amount of space, making it good for demonstrations." Along with this, a Photo Club was organized for the first time. Members, who must have taken Mr. Malone's Photography course, were able to take advantage of the facility to pursue their interests and do independent work in photography.

"Most students at South don't even realize the opportunities there are in art classes here."

—Julie Hillstrom, senior

The Weaving and Textiles classes received a new classroom to work in. All of the looms were moved to the room which ROTC formerly met in. Many problems caused earlier by holding Painting and Weaving classes in the same room were alleviated by the separation of the classrooms.

In March a convention for art teachers from Kansas and Missouri was held at South. Speakers, demonstrations, exhibits and workshops filled the schedule of events. The purpose of the convention was to show teachers new teaching techniques, tools and materials in the art world.

Unusual classes await musicians

Walking into a Concert or Symphonic Band rehearsal, one could usually find something out of the ordinary happening. Mr. Jim Cochran, the director, and many of his students were known to handle first and second hours in a unique way.

On some days one might have heard Mr. Cochran giving a class one of his "conceptual lectures", labeled so by his students. He often employed colorful comparisons to illustrate some principle or concept of music. He explained the relation between the precise attack of a musical note to a mail bag being hooked by a passing train, for example. One of his most humorous comparisons was between a rapid crescendo and a nine-month pregnancy achieved in five seconds. The lectures were usually serious, however, and as Patty Lee put it, "Mr. Cochran can sometimes get a little off track, but he usually makes a point which helps us all."

"I may use strange illustrations because kids remember them."

—Mr. Jim Cochran

Within the band, there were some strange groups formed, the two largest being the Band Schvoos and the Band Mystics. Eric Frohmberg said, "The Mystics were started to help boost spirit and organize unusual activities for members." Among such activities were band fencing, Mystic parties, and beaver hunts. The band's taxidermy squad never quite got off the ground.

The band did not have any project as large as a trip to Germany to prepare for, as did last year's band. However, they did have several important performances. Their first, the Winter Concert, was well received. At Masterworks, the Symphonic Band and combined choirs played arrangements written by Thomas Cousins. Both bands also performed at the State Music Festival this spring, to compete for superior ratings.

Jazz musicians earn high rating

Jazz Band, as a performing group, required much time outside of class in addition to the time spent during class. Jazz Band performed two concerts of their own in the Little Theatre. Other concerts within the school included a lunch-room concert played for all three lunch periods. Outside of school the band was asked to play at the Women's Jazz Festival, although they were unable to attend. On February 15, Jazz Band attended the Central State Jazz Festival in Manhattan. They were the only high school band to receive straight "1" ratings, and only one college band received this same honor. Last summer Jazz Band was also able to accompany Symphonic Band on a two-week trip to West Germany.

"Jazz is a true American art form."

—Mr. Jim Cochran

The actual Jazz Band curriculum covered a variety of different types of jazz. It included mainstream and early jazz as well as some Kansas City jazz. Jazz Band also performed some original music. This music was written in a rock/jazz style. Stanton Zeff, the composer of this piece, was also a member of the All-State Jazz Band which performed in Wichita for the Kansas Music Educators Association (KMEA).

Mr. Cochran thinks it is important to continue something that is so much a part of America, and he is pleased to offer Jazz Band as part of the curriculum. He said, "Jazz Band gives kids a basis for a hobby after entering the professional world. It's a good avocation."

Music resounds from Orchestra

Orchestra continued its tradition of excellence through yet another season. As has been the custom for the past few years, Orchestra shared its wind players with Symphonic Band. With this added depth to the group's sound, Orchestra had several performances throughout the year. On their first concert in late December, they played Sine Nomine, Carol of the Bells and Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring. Orchestra also performed at the Masterworks concert, the State Music Festival and their own, all-orchestra concert.

Five members of Orchestra were members of the All-State Orchestra. They were Chris Cheng, Judy Ives and Betty Suh on violin, Maggi Lansky on viola and Maria Stuessi on flute. This group performed for the Kansas Music Educators Association convention on February 21. As Mr. Bruce Williams stated, "We really have a lot of good players."

Mr. Williams, the orchestra's conductor, attended school at Southwest College in Winfield, Kansas and obtained his Masters at the University of Oklahoma. Before he came to Shawnee Mission schools, he taught in Huron, South Dakota and Hutchinson, Kansas. In addition to his present position with the Shawnee Mission schools, Mr. Williams also conducted the Overland Park Orchestra and maintained his position as principal viola with the UMKC Civic Orchestra.

Concert Choir teaches basics

Several changes were made in the sophomore choirs this year. For example, due to declining enrollment Choraleers and Sophomore Treble Ensemble were done away with, and Concert Choir was team-taught for the first time this year.

While Mr. Ralph Weber, who was a new instructor at South this year, directed the Concert Choir during performances, the group was actually taught by both him and Ms. Marie Lerner. In rehearsing for performances, the choir was divided into two groups. Ms. Lerner worked with the girls on their parts, and Mr. Weber worked with the boys on theirs.

"In Concert Choir, there's a lot of hard work involved, but it really pays off."—Nina Russ

Mr. Weber said the main purpose of Concert Choir was to teach the students basic fundamentals of music. Concert Choir members were also encouraged to continue their studies in music by auditioning for other choirs the following year.

The Sophomore Mixed Ensemble consisted of 16 sophomores from Concert Choir. Members were chosen by audition. The ensemble was an extra-curricular group which met on Tuesday and Thursday mornings at 7:15. In addition to performing at the regular school choir concerts, the Sophomore Mixed Ensemble also performed on the Plaza, in state competition, and at the Sophomore Mixed Invitational, which was held mainly for recruiting new choir members from the area junior high schools.

Choirs create holiday tradition

T'was a fortnight 'fore Christmas, and all through the school, there were maidens and peasants, jesters and fools. The greens had been hung 'round the room with care, in wait for the guests who soon would be there. When out in the hall there rang such a sound, to beckon the guests and call everyone round. T'were three trumpets that played; the fanfare was complete, after all had entered and taken their seat. To start the evening, a gentleman read—rules for etiquette, for those to be fed. "Guests must not wipe fingers on beards. Please keep tables and neighbors unsmeared." A group of young men offered a toast, "To the holiday season and the wonderful host." Servants with trays now walked in—it was time for the dinner to finally begin. First came the boar's head, displayed on a platter, aloft in a procession—the pig looked flattered.

"The dinner was a big success. We worked hard but we had fun doing it."—Jeff Walton, senior

A carol was sung to commemorate this feat, but soon the guests got another treat. Servants rushed in with pudding on fire—all were amazed; such food was admired. The guests settled down to enjoy their meal and listen to music of great appeal. What was the occasion for all this fun? The Madrigal Dinner had just begun!

The Heritage Singers, Varsity Men, and Chanterelles all participated in the production of the Madrigal Dinner. This Renaissance holiday feast was similar to Christmas festivities in sixteenth century England. The choirs performed music from the same time period. The initial purpose of the dinner was to raise money for the choirs, but as Jeff Walton, sr., put it, "The real profit was the fun we all had putting this together." Ms. Marie Lerner said, "We hope this is the beginning of a tradition to be followed in years ahead."

Sophs receive new opportunity

The Chanticleers underwent a few major changes this year in that the group received a new director and for the first year sophomores were allowed to become part of the group.

According to Mr. Ralph Weber, who was new to South this year, sophomore girls were allowed to become part of the 56-member group because too many girls were enrolled in Concert Choir. In order to maintain a balance of girls and boys in Concert Choir, ten sophomore girls were selected by audition to become members of Chanticleers.

"It's an honor to be allowed to be in an upperclass choir, because sophomores usually don't get that type of opportunity."—Brigitte Sandquist

Mr. Weber said that at first it was difficult for the sophomores to adjust to being part of the choir. However, several parties and dinners were held to acquaint the new girls with the rest of the group, and they made the adjustment quickly. Junior Lisa Brackett said, "At first everybody was reluctant about having sophomores in a traditionally junior/senior choir, but they have grown to be an important part of the group."

The Chanterelles, under the direction of Ms. Marie Lerner, kept up their tradition of musical excellence this year. In addition to performing at school choir concerts, the Chanterelles performed for church groups, nursing homes, various invitationals, and performed a Christmas concert for KMBZ radio.

Choirs receive new instructor

Mr. Ralph Weber was a new addition to the music staff, taking the place of Mr. Larry Stetler, who left South to accept another job offer. Mr. Weber graduated from Kansas State University with two degrees, one in business marketing and the other in music education. He received many job offers in both education and business. He said, "My final decision was to choose between South and an oil company." He decided to come to South "because it's about the best place in Kansas to teach." Mr. Weber related well to students from the start and was occasionally mistaken to be a student himself. He said, "I enjoy working with the kids here because they have a higher sophistication level than any other students I've encountered."

"Mr. Weber adapted quickly to students here. He made a smooth transition for the groups he teaches."—Robyn Nordin, senior

One of Mr. Weber's new classes was the Varsity Men. The group was made larger, partly to improve their chances for superior ratings at the State Music Festival. Besides performing at the Madrigal Dinner and many other concerts, the Varsity Men sang at several Blue and Gold Banquets for Scouts.

Southern Comfort was the name given to the barbershop quartet formed this year. All four members came from the Varsity Men. This quartet was an extracurricular activity because its members had to give up part of their lunch periods every day to rehearse.

Speakers work to achieve goals

"An issue a day keeps Ashen away," or so said this year's debate squad. Debaters found themselves uprooted as often as once a week as Mr. Gerald Ashen shifted colleagues. In layman's terms, each debater was given a new partner, generally after each tournament. Debaters also learned the secret to good debating: llnbc. Llnbc, or loose-leaf notebook concept, was a corresponding notebook and card system initiated by Mr. Ashen for added proficiency on the topic. As Mr. Ashen said, he wanted to overwhelm the opposition with knowledge, not persuade them. Debate taught not just how to research facts, but how to search them out. This year Elliot Gorelick, Laura Hussey, Jeff Hintzman and Julie Jobson, jrs., placed second in the district tournament and seventh on the state level.

"Whereas speaking is a by-product of debate, in forensics, speaking is everything."—Mr. Gerald Ashen

Forensics is a conglomeration of as many as 12-15 different speaking events. This year's tournament season was especially competitive because of the strong interest in Forensics. Tournaments involved travel to many different schools. The season's highlight was the hosting of South's own tournament on February 28. As many as 20-25 schools participated in this event which the public supported with much time and effort.

One of Ms. Sandi Gresham's goals this year was to seek out new contemporary scripts to balance out the classics. "New pieces are refreshing," she said. She feels that all one needs is sensitivity. For, as she put it, "Forensics gets in your blood."

Students study possible careers

KSMS radio station began the year with seven people on its staff. During the year, the station's staff more than doubled in size. As Ms. Sandi Gresham stated, "It has been a team effort to become sound." The station is important to the students, and they worked hard to make it better, according to Ms. Gresham. Last year's senior class donated $500 which went toward new equipment and records.

One of the station's activities this year was the Wednesday Club. Representatives from different school activities were invited to program their own show to perform during lunch. This way many more students had the opportunity to be a part of KSMS.

Ms. Gresham felt that most of the students actively involved in KSMS had an interest in some sort of broadcasting career. Consequently, each student was interested in bettering the station. As Brent Clum, one of the station managers said, "We've made a lot of advances, but we still have a long way to go."

"The radio station is for the entire school."—Ms. Sandi Gresham

"Radio and TV is a career class," said Ms. Gresham. And that essentially was what Radio and TV was all about. It was a class emphasizing the history of radio and TV, creating, producing, and writing radio dramas and much more. All writing was done in the style of the 1930s. Students also involved themselves in the writing of commercials. By the end of the semester class, an actual video tape had been made. The students wrote, directed, produced and carried out all the responsibilities of a TV production.

This year's classes had several guest speakers to add to their learning experience. Ms. Gresham feels it is good to have an essentially career-oriented class like Radio and TV, because it is helpful in future job placement.

Swezey likes new position

Theatre classes faced breaking in a new instructor this year. Mr. Mark Swezey, the new drama teacher, said he found getting along with the students fairly easy once the usual adjustment problems were over. He also said that he enjoyed the school considerably.

Originally from New York, Mr. Swezey attended school at KU. He has been involved in teaching creative dramatics for approximately 25 schools in the Kansas City area, has acted on Off-Broadway in New York and taught theatre for five years in Tonganoxie. He has his BA and BS degrees and is currently working on his Masters Degree.

"There are a lot of talented kids here, which gives me a lot of freedom to experiment with different types of theatre."

—Mr. Mark Swezey

At South Mr. Swezey was blessed with large classes. His Introduction to Theatre classes learned the basics, including units on stage craft and acting. Actor's Studio rehearsed a variety of different types of scenes and was involved in much improvisation. Repertory Theatre produced three full-length plays: Glass Menagerie, Godspell and Play It Again Sam, which were performed in April. Mr. Swezey said he found in working with the students that, as a whole, they "tend to specialize in one (type of) activity more so than in smaller schools."

NHS emphasizes service aspects

National Honor Society tried to place more emphasis on leadership and service this year. In order to accomplish this, NHS participated in several service projects. For example, NHS members did work to benefit the Ronald McDonald House, held canned food drives, and did volunteer work at local nursing homes. President Alice Cheng said, "We want to be known as more than just an 'in name only' academic organization."

National Honor Society also held several fund-raisers. The profits from some of these fund-raisers went toward the initiation ceremony and buying roses for new members.

"We are trying to emphasize the leadership aspects of NHS as well as the qualities of scholarship and character."

—Alice Cheng

Seventeen seniors qualified as National Merit Semi-finalists this year as a result of their outstanding Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test scores. Thirteen seniors received letters of commendation. In order to become semi-finalists, the students had to score in the top half of one percent of all students taking the test. The number of semi-finalists from South this year was one of the highest since the school opened. Senior Dan Hurwitz also received a special honor for tying the top score in the state.

Newspaper gets face-lift

Changes in the format of the Patriot helped to improve the overall appeal and quality of the school paper. Tom Long, a staff member who graduated last year, designed the new flag (nameplate) and page banners. With new organization, the staff was able to produce more refined and concise issues. The paper was also generally lengthened because of successful advertisement sales.

One factor which helped the staff was a greater sense of unity and diligence among members. Katie Field, Feature Editor, said, "This year everyone seems to be very dedicated. We're producing a paper that we all can be proud of." The high quality of the writers, artist, photographers and managers combined with the leadership and hard work of the editors helped improve the paper. Ms. Linda Barber found that her second year as sponsor of the Patriot was different from her somewhat transitional first year. She said, "Everything has been running more smoothly. I feel like the whole staff is well-organized."

"The staff members are close and work well together. That's what makes a successful paper."

Staff changes style of book

Heritage staff members experienced both frustration and satisfaction as they worked diligently to put out the yearbook.

Even before the school year began, seniors Michele Watts (editor-in-chief), Joyce Hill, Barb Eby, Joan Bowen, Ken Glickstein and Sheldon Samuels, and advisor Ms. Linda Barber planned the yearbook at Inter-Collegiate Press yearbook camp. This year's book had a more contemporary look than those of years past. Various graphics and isolated quotes on each two-page spread helped to accomplish this. The book also involved more students through mini-features found in the Student Body section.

"The experience gained from yearbook is one from which I will always benefit."

—Michele Watts, Editor-In-Chief

Sixteen seniors from both the Heritage and Patriot staffs were selected as members of Quill and Scroll, an honor society for high school journalists. In order to be eligible for Quill and Scroll membership, a student had to be a senior with "significant contributions to a school publication, interest in the field of journalism, attributes of loyalty, dependability and honesty, and high academic achievement." Members received pins, certificates of membership and a subscription to Quill and Scroll magazine at the initiation ceremony at Shawnee Mission North on April 29.

Raiders romp

"White rules!" was the cry heard after the Sophomore White Team, led by Coach Dave Oliver, beat the Green Team, coached by Mr. Bill Stigmeier and first-year assistant coach, Mr. Keith Allen. The close game was a lesson to both teams, teaching them that hard work produces success. With this lesson in mind, the sophomores enjoyed an exciting first year of high school football.

The Green team battled back for a well-earned 7-2 record. The White team was also successful, earning a record of 7 wins and 1 loss.

By the end of the season, the teams were able to bring together the fundamentals of football, causing "victory" to be a word that they will surely remember.

Experience is main objective

Gaining football experiance and knowledge is the main objective of the Junior Varsity Football Team. Under the guidance of Coaches Ken Johns and Rex Groom, the team practiced daily with the varsity team in preparation for the Monday night games. Only six of the nine scheduled games were played, due to the long distances of some of their opponents.

The team had talent in all areas. Offensively, Butch Ross handled the passing, while slotback John Rider completed his plays. Craig Templin, Scott Coffin, and Scott Grauer helped out defensively.

State is on the minds of the Junior Varsity team for next year and rightly so. They should be strong contenders for the title.

A season with ups and downs

"Physically, this was the best team I have ever coached," exclaimed Coach John Davis. He won his 100th game at South when the team played Garden City.

The Varsity Football Team began by winning the first four games, before losing two disappointing games to SM Northwest, and SM West. Heavy afternoon storms during two of the games caused poor attendance, but the conditions favored a running game and South.

The team was composed of many talented seniors. Scott Zolotor led the offense and Dan Christie proved to be a true leader as quarterback by taking the team to the 6A state playoffs.

Lawless wins

With the familiar sight of an old red pickup truck trailing behind, the Girls' Cross Country team set out for another grueling day on the roads. Prodding shouts of encouragement were given by Coach Verlyn Schmidt behind the wheel.

Somewhere those shouts were heard as the team won five of its eight meets, a second place finish at state, and produced a state champion in senior Dede Lawless. A promising junior, Kara Nichols, placed eleventh in the state meet and received All-State honors.

Experience and endurance will definitely benefit next year's team. Commenting on the overall season, sophomore Lindsey Frey said, "You can't believe you made it when you come to the end of the season."

The harriers finish second

The harriers of South dashed off to a bumpy year by running miles daily to build up endurance and perseverance. The cross country runners ran the streets to work on speed and ran at Shawnee Mission Park to work on hills. Coach Verlyn Schmidt awaited a season that promised to be full of excitement.

Jim Brown and Todd Cooley gave the Junior Varsity team depth. "During the race we tried to give everything we had," Cooley said. Their effort did not go unrewarded as the Junior Varsity and "C" team won a considerable amount of dual meets by taking first through fifth places.

Team effort was the key element to the second place finishes at Little Regionals. The future looks bright as many harriers should return to cross the finish line.

Young squad places high

Dedication and hard work were requirements for the Varsity Cross Country members. The demands were even greater this year as the entire team was composed of juniors and a sophomore. Replacing last year's talented seniors put more pressure on the team than ever before.

Leading the team were Pat Lawless, Craig Schultz and Teun Ebbers, but as Phil Ciesielski said, "We really did work as a team". The team demonstrated its strong character as it won second in Regionals and qualified for the State meet.

The members of this team were rewarded from the experience they received this year and promise to be even better next year as the entire team is returning. Coach Verlyn Schmidt praised his young squad saying, "They continued our winning tradition".

Strong finish for varsity

For a few months, the Girls' Varsity and Junior Varsity Tennis Team had to live and breathe tennis. Tournaments, after school practices and the endurance to beat the heat taxed the free time of members of the tennis team.

Breaking in the new coach, Mr. Andy Anderson, was a pleasure for the girls. His encouragement was responsible for the team spirit.

The East Invitational Tennis Tournament highlighted the season. The girls captured first place by edging out top-ranked SM East.

In post-season play, Allison Malm, Patty Lee and Jill Stanphill qualified for the State Tournament which was held on October 28. Performances by Leticia Gonzalez, Pallen Lee, Debbie Shore and Donna Cope will provide the basis for a strong varsity team next year.

Hard work yields victory

When one thinks of golf, thoughts of Jack Nicklaus, country clubs and "Caddyshack", come to mind, right? The members of the Girls' Golf team remember long hours, tedious practice, putting, and an endless amount of patience.

Under the guidance of Coach Paul Sexton and the strong consistent play by seniors Lynn Mathews and Nancy Drake, the team captured a fourth place title in the state tournament. Mathews was a tenth place medalist in the individual competition.

The returning team for next year will have an upperhand in competition, with the return of seven team members.

Talent leads to success

Talent was the key to success for this year's Varsity Volleyball Team. Winning two local tournaments and finishing fifth in league and second in sub-state were just a few of the many accomplishments of this team. According to Coach Sheri Brosseau, teamwork and hustle combined to form the backbone for the squad that "just wouldn't let any ball drop." Leading the team were Kelli Glazier, all-league first team, and Penne Buchner, all-league second team. Along with talent, Coach Brosseau praised the team's sportsmanship, which helped make South a class above the rest.

The junior varsity also showed much class throughout the year. "Starting out slow, they really showed a lot of improvement," said Coach Brosseau. With hard work, the team bounced back for many wins and hope to continue for the varsity next year.

The sophomore squad, led by Coach Karen Hadel, played well, though they lacked a strong background. The team gradually developed their skills, as their play got constantly better during the season.

Sophs make most of season

Two of the main goals for the Sophomore Boys' Basketball team were to learn the basic fundamentals and to constantly improve their skills. With these goals in mind, the sophomores enjoyed an extremely successful season. Coach Greg Wilson described the team as "eager—eager to have the chance to play and eager to learn". This eagerness produced a hard-working team that was constantly learning and improving. By the end of the season, the players had all developed their skills a little more and were working well as a team. The goals had been accomplished.

Phil Barnett, Todd Vogel, Mike Corwin, Chris Heinz and Chris Eaton were a few of the stand-outs on the team as they each developed their skills and showed much improvement. Yet, the entire team benefitted from the season.

One of the highlights of the year was the team's domination over SM East. Winning all their games against them, as well as playing in two double overtime games during the season, helped unite the team and made them even closer. By working hard, the team made the most of their sophomore season.

JV Boys have difficult season

The Boys' Junior Varsity Basketball team had a year of ups and downs. The "ups" were the experience the sophomores on the team gained and the overall talent displayed. The "downs" were the frustrations experienced over the lack of wins and inconsistency of players' performance.

The team practiced daily under the colorful leadership of Coach Dave Oliver. Player Dave Aaronson had this to say about Coach Oliver, "He commands a great deal of respect. That's probably why he is so effective as a coach." Outstanding performances were turned in by Aaronson and Graham Rola. The sophomores on the team were led by Cory Hohnbaum and Bill Hope. Although the team experienced difficulties this year, many of their problems in the future will be solved by the knowledge they gained during this season.

Hustle dominates varsity court

A season filled with hustle and determination best described the 1980 varsity basketball team. They thrilled their fans time and time again throughout the year with the exciting play.

The Raiders had something this year that South basketball had lacked in past years—rebounding strength. The team had the size and muscle to intimidate opponents underneath the boards. Brad Palmer led the team in that department. The talented starting line-up was the strength of the squad. John Crowl demonstrated skill in ball handling, while Paul Giordano, Brad Bradford and Tim Davis excelled in their shooting abilities.

Under the guidance of Coach Paul Sexton the varsity squad's hustle prevailed. He looks for a successful season next year.

Teamwork prevails for sophomores

Dedication, long hours, and compatibility were the key ingredients to this year's Sophomore Girls' Basketball team. Coach Dick Kramer in his third year at South, provided the leadership needed in shaping a new sophomore squad. After commuting from the elementary schools where Coach Kramer doubles as a physical education teacher, the girls began the tedious hours of practice.

The team looks especially hopeful for next year's Junior Varsity and Varsity squads. Headed by Linda Samuels, Patti Cetnar, Kim Erickson, and Sara Buchanon, the team took second at the Sophomore Tournament held at Shawnee Mission North.

Every year Sophomore teams in all sports work on building the knowledge and experience needed for participation on future teams. Not only did the girls strive for this but established friendships that bonded them on and off the court. Next year should be a winner all around for girls' basketball.

JV overcomes adversity

The Junior Varsity girls' basketball team demonstrated strong character as they worked hard to overcome adversity. The team stayed close in every game, even though they were crippled by injuries throughout the year which depleted their overall depth. They also had to rise to the challenge of playing against schools who played down some of their varsity players, while South did not have one varsity player on the team. Coach Randy Gray praised the team's character by saying "They have really given all they got".

The team overcame all these obstacles with excellent teamwork and improvement in their overall skills. The key to the team was their stingy defense. Coach Gray described the team as a "real scrappy bunch" which really fought hard in every game.

The year helped unite the team and by the season's end, "they made lots of progress". However, Chris O'Conner perhaps summed the season up best by saying "it's been a learning experience".

Girls triumph

The Varsity Girls' Basketball team entered the season with high expectations. Experience and height were two of their main assets as they constantly beat teams on the boards. Even more importantly, Coach Ron Millard pointed out, was that the girls were "playing as a team" and "communicating well with lots of floor talk". Patty Hoover explained the team's closeness when she said, "The support and confidence each one of us displayed towards each other helped us play well together as a team".

Coach Millard also indicated that this team, led by Patty Hoover, was a better shooting team than most school's. Lynette Darling was the team's leading rebounder and scorer, while Cari Creason and Therese Mullin kept the team going with agressive play. The team could have been even better as Carolyn Wagner was out with a knee injury for most of the season, yet the entire team played even harder to compensate for her absence.

"They wanted to do it due to their own motivation, which made them look forward to working and trying to improve," praised Coach Millard on the team's attitude toward winning. Their success on the court complimented their successful friendships off the court, giving the team great satisfaction and a very successful year.

Wrestlers show determination

The 1980-81 Wrestling team started off with high hopes. The grapplers finished with a respectable record.

Making a weight classification is an essential part of wrestling. Shedding excess poundage while retaining the iron strength needed in a match was a tough accomplishment. The denial of excess food was not always easy. Imagine chewing saliva for two days before a weigh-in so as to gain an advantage in a lower weight class.

A lot of time was expended in practice developing a repertoire of holds and maneuvers necessary for getting pins. Also, before each match, a wrestler considered his strategy, based on the size and reputation of his opponent. Tactics were also important, as the wrestler had to save enough energy to finish all three rounds if necessary. Quickness was vital, because one false move by the opponent could provide the key to a pin.

Prior to the South Invitational, the wrestlers chose eight nominees for their princess. They were voted on and Robin Wilke was selected as princess. Laurie Dahl and Jean Weaver were selected as attendants.

The efforts of the squad proved to be essential. This was a direct result of their hard work during the season and served as a reward for both themselves and the team.

Swimmers prove South is best

The Boys' Swim Team won the State meet by more points than any previous winner and became only the second South team ever to win State. Coach Bruce Bove explained the key to success when he said, "They pushed themselves; they wanted to succeed." By thriving on long, demanding practices, the team was determined to prove that they were the best. With the entire team working hard and with proven talent, Coach Bove watched the team accomplish their goal.

The squad had many returning lettermen, giving the team the needed experience and leadership. Yet, as Brad Coens put it, "The entire team had a real good season and worked hard to get the most out of their abilities." Demonstrating the team's excellent depth was the fact that 11 swimmers placed at State.

The team members made the most out of the shorter season by winning State and demonstrating their strong character. Once again, it was proven that South is best.

Gymnastics is a rare combination of physical strength, concentration, critique, and dedication. Working for this combination was this year's Boys' Gymnastics team. With the assistance of Coach Steve Nelson, the team placed third in the Sunflower League and sent Irvin McCoy and Paul Hamann to state.

Individual and team effort contributed to the team's winning season. Seniors Van Crosby and Paul Hamann compiled much of the team scoring. Junior Irvin McCoy showed definite promise for the future in the high bar and vault.

A gymnast is most often improved by experience. If such an idea holds true, the future looks promising for the team. Juniors Irvin McCoy and Chris Hoy will return with several outstanding sophomores.

Girls enjoy best season

Winning became a common happening for the Girls' Gymnastics Team the past year. South was the first team ever to win both the regional meet and the Sunflower League. Coach Billie Rice watched the team win 9 medals at the regional meet, 6 more than any team had previously won, and place fourth at state. "The quality of gymnastics has risen each year, making it more exciting", said Coach Rice, "and our girls are one of the most exciting teams in the league".

Leading the team were Kelly Burns and Kristi Strong, but it was the overall depth of the team that made them winners.

Not only were the girls winners, but they formed a closely knit team. With only one senior leaving, the girls are looking for even more wins in the future.

Weekend games provide fun

While most South students were catching up on sleep every Saturday morning, two hundred other Raiders were passing, dribbling and shooting during Intramural basketball games.

Twenty-five teams consisting of sophomores, juniors and seniors competed throughout the season. Two all-girl teams and a faculty team added color to the program.

Part of the attraction of Intramurals was the easy going atmosphere. The primary goal for most was to have a good time. A tournament at the season's end capitalized on this goal and produced a first place team.

Soccer gains in popularity

As soccer grew in popularity around the nation, it gained a substantial foothold at South. Hindering the teams' efforts was the fact that the student body did not support the team. This led to the problem of building team spirit. Coach Kelvin Reese provided the support and the patience.

Since losing two of their first three matches, the varsity squad fought back and maintained consistent play. Captains Alan Moore and Steve Myers showed fine athletic ability through the season. Craig Curless had a tremendous season, playing at left-wing, while Steve Ketchum contributed greatly to the team's effort. The varsity team finished the season with a 6-6-4 record.

The junior varsity team played impressively and a good season is expected next year.

Sophomores
Officers seek unity

Another year gone, and another group of sophomores passed through the doorways of South. While each class strives for uniqueness and individualism, the class of '83 seemed to achieve this goal. Jane Stooke, president of the sophomore class; Andrea Reese, vice-president; Helen Mahoney, secretary; and Karen Wootton, treasurer helped mold the individuals into a unified class. It was important to them that the sophomores felt like they belonged to one group, and became part of South. This was an attempt to keep the students together and loyal through their first long, hard year often filled with ridicule imposed by the juniors and seniors.

Their other main objective as sophomore class officers was to raise funds for the prom they will give as juniors. This was done in many different and original ways although class dues were their primary source of income.

Jane Stooke, pres., said "I feel South has a lot to offer, and being new is no reason to miss out."

New center aids students

Upon arriving at school on the first day to try to pay fees or change an unwanted class, students discovered the registrar and counseling center were no longer where they had been the year before. Not only had these offices been relocated downstairs in 140 and 140 west, there were two new counselors. Mrs. Jan Schulte, the counselors' secretary, said of the new location, "It has lots of positive points. Things were hectic at first and it took quite a while to get it organized. I like it."

The two new counselors were Dr. Betty Hall and Mr. Jack Prall, each of whom spent an experimental year at South. "I have really enjoyed it," Mr. Prall said of his brief stay at South, "The student body and faculty were helpful and easy to work with. The similarities between North and South made the transition easy."

Officer Mann patrols !ot

Those who entered the main parking lot each day probably saw a man in an official uniform staring at their car. That was Mr. Orville Mann and he was checking to make sure each car had a parking sticker. Officer Mann, security officer at South, was employed by the Shawnee Mission School District and commissioned by the state of Kansas. His basic duty was to patrol South's three parking lots, but on occasion, he was dispatched to other locations. Officer Mann seemed to enjoy his work, and said, "The majority of the students are really nice. Most try and behave."

Gym class cramps style

Imagine, if you will, spending an hour and a half in front of the mirror, changing outfits 12 times for that special someone you are hoping will ask you out this weekend. At last you think you look better than you have since the first day of kindergarten, only to go to first hour and hear your gym teacher tell you to put on a bathing suit thousands of kids you do not even know have worn, and jump in the ice cold pool for a fun hour of swimming laps. Yipee, you think as your wet hair lies limp in your eyes and all your hard work is destroyed in a minute. The rest of the day you are destined to hide behind your books and duck into class early hoping your certain someone does not catch a glimpse of the "natural" look.

This trauma was often true for those unfortunate students who had first-hour gym this year. It was somewhat discouraging to dress and undress five times every day. Sophomores worried enough about their appearance without the added concern about what to do after spending an hour in a rowsing game of football, field hockey, or tennis. Especially if, heaven forbid, they should happen to sweat. Of course there are showers provided if one should happen to fall into this unpleasant category. But with 5 minutes to dress and attempt to run a comb through your hair, a lot of cheap cologne proved to be quicker. Although embarrassing, gym was a fun hour with no homework to worry about at night.

Call them Crackerjacks!

The dictionary explains that a crackerjack is someone who is exceptionally good in a given field or avocation, and the performers in Crackerjack Theater were just that, exceptional. Two girls from this year's sophomore class, Carolyn Drumm and Sharon Forsberg, were members of Crackerjack Theater. In this organization, Carolyn and Sharon were able to share and develop their singing and dancing talent by performing at such places as The Uptown.

Both girls had been members of Crackerjack Theater for almost two years. They emphasized the friendship and fun in the group. As Carolyn related, "There's so much love in the group." Sharon felt, "It's not like performing, we're just having fun."

Study skills emphasized

Most sophomores began the school year bewildered and confused. A more personal atmosphere, however, welcomed them as a new advisory program was incorporated into the semester sophomore study halls. In this pilot project, the advisors, staff teachers and counselors, took the initiative in solving matters relevant to individual students. This project necessitated a temporary staff shuffle throughout the district.

Mr. Jack Prall, counselor from North, replaced Mr. McCoy and Dr. Betty Hall from Northwest replaced Mrs. Anne Gresham. These advisors aided the establishment of the program throughout the district and helped adjusting sophomores gradually settle into life here at South. According to Mr. Phil Larson, counselor, the successful program provided more personal assistance to students. "We now reach out to the students instead of them seeking us for help."

Through the course of the program the sophomore students received an orientation to South. In addition, sophomores in the mandatory study halls were advised in careers, academics, enrollment and were offered tutorial services. The counselor-student ratio, previously at about 450:1, was reduced to approximately 20:1, thereby increasing the project's overall effectiveness. The personalized advising aided the students in adjusting and as the year progressed the once-bewildered lower classmen were at ease in the school.

T-shirts color halls

It is the day after that big concert you could not get tickets to. You have managed to put it out of your mind, and walking to first hour, you pass three people wearing T-shirts from that "excellent" concert you missed.

The concert T-shirts, which usually sold for $8, and the jerseys, which usually sold for $10, were quite popular at South. Willie Nelson, The Cars, The Little River Band, and Kansas are just a few of the bands that visited local concert halls and left their mark on South.

Some students bought the T-shirts because they liked the design, others just to say, "I was there". For most, a certain memory accompanied the shirt.

Biology has character

Within the walls of Shawnee Mission South exist various environments—educational, athletic, or business. The most interesting of these had to be the menageries of the biology rooms on the first and third floors. From within the jungles of plants, strange noises could be heard and warning signs, such as "FERRET IS LOOSE IN ROOM—KEEP DOOR SHUT," were seen decorating doors.

Anyone daring to venture into the biology department encountered a wide range of flora and fauna. Among these were an opossum, a ferret or two, dozens of gerbils and hamsters, fish and various slithering snakes. As for the vegetation, it covered the counters, hung from the ceilings and blocked the windows, contributing an eerie effect to the rooms.

All of these added character, or at least color, noise, and a definite odor, to the rooms in which they found themselves homes for the year.

Mustangs decorate lot

The 1980-81 school year brought the usual flood of cars to the parking lot. As always, there was a wide variety of models, both foreign and domestic. They ranged from sports cars to pick-ups.

But of all the different models, the Mustang was the most prevalent. The majority of Mustangs were those made during the late '60's and early '70's. Scott Meltzer, one Mustang owner, said he bought a Mustang because, "It's a classic. It won't depreciate in value. A Mustang is something you respect."

The Mustang had been popular ever since Ford started producing them. Part of this popularity can be attributed to the wide variety of models and the economic gas mileage of most models. For the average high school student, a car was a source of pride, and to drive a Mustang was enviable.

Lansky enjoys London life

The desire for travel was more than a far-fetched dream for sophomore Amy Lansky who recently spent a year living in the southeast suburbs of London, England. Amy, who attended a private girls' school during her stay, was surprised with the contrasting cultures. "I thought the English would be different. I thought they would be stuffy!" Amy's parents, both doctors, opted to research overseas—thus allowing Amy and her older sister Maggi a year-long vacation from their home country.

Amy was faced with a few problems during her visit. It was difficult becoming accustomed to the language due to the varying dialects. Her friends, however, aided her in conquering communication barriers.

Amy wishes someday to return to England to visit her friends and attend college.

Amy's "passport from the colonies", as one customs officer termed it, was the key to discovering a culture significantly different from that of the United States.

Titens shows icy talent

In every class, there is someone with a special talent or skill, and a great dedication toward that field. Joanie Titens, sophomore, who has been ice skating for nine years and competitively for five, was just that.

Joanie practiced two mornings a week at 5:45 and four days a week after school. Her skating began for fun. She then took group lessons which led to private lessons and after a while, her teacher suggested competition.

"My first competition was scary. I didn't know what was going on, but after I was done, I wanted to go back for more," Joanie admits. Her goal was to go to nationals, quite an accomplishment for any young skater.

What Joanie liked most about her sport was "When I'm out there skating, everything else goes away. I don't think about school."

Juniors Prom sails on smooth water

Prom is an event all junior and seniors classes anxiously await, from the time they first decide to look at the opposite sex, until that special night. While most people are buying dresses and renting tuxes, four people are near panic.

This year those four people were Susie O'Brien, President of the Junior Class; Debbie Shore, Vice-President: Karen Linder, Secretary; and Cindy Leighton, Treasurer. The day they were elected last May their worries began. Even a year ahead of time, a location for Prom was almost impossible to find. After months of work, Ramada Inn Central was finally chosen. But they still had a lot of work ahead of them in order to make that special night run smoothly. A band had to be selected, a theme had to be decided on, prom committees were chosen, funds were raised, photographers were picked, the invitations were engraved, and decorations were carefully designed.

These four girls devoted a large percentage of their time and worry to this important event. They met every Wednesday during lunch merely to report what they had accomplished the rest of the week. Savana was chosen as the band, Gaylon Titens agreed to perform during the band's breaks, and "Come Sail Away" made an elegant theme.

"At times the work seemed endless, we felt May would never come, but in the end it all ran smoothly. It's a great sense of accomplishment to know you've helped 600 kids enjoy the best evening of their life," said Cindy.

Adrian wins Kansas title

It has been said, yet not always accurately, that the dream of every American girl is to be in a beauty pageant. Unfortunately, only a very small number ever enter a pageant and even a smaller number win or even place. Despite the odds against it, though, every once in a while one runs into someone who has competed and maybe even won. The students at South this year can say that they went to school with Miss Kansas Teen 1980, Adrian Hershman.

Adrian was a senior this year and became involved in the Miss Kansas Teen competition through her modeling at Patricia Stevens. As she related, "I took a test and then a few weeks later I got a letter telling me that I had qualified to compete for Miss Kansas Teen. I didn't do anything about it, but a little while later I was out of town and my mom sent in my entry form."

After winning Miss Kansas Teen, Adrian went on to the Miss Teen All-American pageant in Florida, where she entered with 62 other girls from all over the country. Although she did not win this, Adrian felt, "The entire process was the experience of a lifetime. Being chosen Miss Kansas Teen is an honor that will be something really special when I'm older."

Youth gain experience

Seven distinguished musicians from the junior and senior class found an interesting way to develop their talent. Leslie Braun, Chris Cheng, Judy Ives, Lyn Morefield, Maria Stuessi, Betty Suh and Leslie Taylor auditioned and were chosen for Youth Symphony. They practiced every Saturday morning from 8 to 11.

The Youth Symphony performed at White Recital Hall eight times a year between fall and summer. It was designed by several leading acoustical experts, and was used by many other groups.

In addition to playing under the baton of Dr. Circle, who has an outstanding background in music, they were also involved in school bands and orchestra.

"Youth Symphony gives us a chance to get to know other musicians who share our interest and talent. It also gives us the orchestral experience we might not receive otherwise," said Lyn Morefield.

Legion plays the up-beat

People of all ages and walks of life enjoy listening entertainment—whether it be classical symphonies, country-western, mellow rock or hard rock. Within such a musically oriented society, the formation and popularity of music groups is inevitable.

One such group, temporarily called Legion, is a rock group who, as their lead singer explained, "will play anything from Linda Ronstadt to Rush." Legion is composed of six performers who are or were students at South.

Lani Lind, senior, is the lead singer for the band.

She has been performing for nine years, a career started by a television performance in Ohio. Lead guitar for the band is Bruce Parsa, senior, who has been playing for eight years. Bruce is accompanied by Harry Roberts, senior, on the bass guitar, John DeFeo, 1980 graduate, on the keyboard, and, formerly, Chris Burge, junior, on the drums (formerly because Chris recently left the band). The talents of these five people were brought together through the coordinating efforts of Rich MacDonald, senior, who acts as financial manager and sound technician.

Legion has been performing intermittently for the past two years at such places as the San Francisco Towers, the Hyatt Regency, and for private and school parties. Who knows, with the talent this group possesses bigger and better things may lie in the future—only time will tell.

Spirit seizes band mystics

This past year, in the final days of the summer marching camp, various band members devised a master plan to bring spirit and a sense of unity to the Marching Band.

These students decided not only to strive for the perfection of marching performances, but also to fulfill their wishes with the development of an elite club entitled "The Sacred Order of Band Mysticism".

The mystics, through the course of the marching season donned their Buddah t-shirts before football games to perform the sacred club ceremony—a ceremony designed to create enthusiasm and bless the performing marchers. The ceremony involving approximately 30 innovative students, was performed in the instrument room with incense and a strobe light putting a touch of pizazz into the club rites.

The mystics hoped to obtain a "oneness of group consciousness" by maintaining loyalty. This was possible, according to Mike Gaffney, senior, when the mystics were allowed to constructively "goof around during band rehearsals".

Julie finds her target

This year's Junior Class had a wide variety of talents, but one of the most unique and interesting of these was a favorite of Julie Jobson. During the summer, Julie is a competitive trap shooter.

Trap shooting is basically a 12-guage rifle sport which involves hitting, or trying to hit, a moving target.

Julie has been shooting trap for five years, two of these competitively. When asked about the danger involved, Julie commented, "Many people have a negative connotation of guns due to hunting and crime. Yet, since the days of Annie Oakley, no one has ever been killed participating in this sport."

Last summer, Julie won the largest competition she has won thus far. She captured the title of Kansas State Sub-Junior Trap Shooting Champion. In doing this, Julie competed against boys and girls fifteen years old and younger and broke 97 out of 100 targets. Julie's prize for winning this competition was a man's watch, not quite suited for her use.

Egner's hobby revives cars

During high school years, many people start what they plan to continue as a lifetime hobby. Some collect stamps, some collect coins, some collect beer cans or bottle caps. This year, however, there was a student with a slightly more unique hobby. Bog Egner, senior, bought old, beat-up cars and fixed them up.

Bob's unusual hobby started when he was in seventh grade and injured himself during a bike race. His father suggested a new hobby such as working on old cars and Bob liked the idea. Together he and his father looked through newspaper classified sections and bought 25 cars, mostly Packards, in a package deal. Bob said the Packards were so popular because they were "The first luxury car in America to be built by hand. Then Cadillac came along and ran them out of business."

Bob used Hemmings Motor News as a source for parts. "It takes a lot of patience," he said of his hobby, but Bob liked "to see what the cars might have looked like sitting on the show room floor."

Roper adds new dimension

Many teachers feel the only or perhaps easiest way to teach is through lecture. Dr. Ken Roper, Physics teacher, has a very different and more interesting philosophy. He stresses the importance of learning through doing and practicing. Since his students work so hard all year, he feels they deserve a break. Once a year he rents science fiction comedy Dark Star, and this year he also rented two 3-D films. This tradition causes many college students to return in December to view the films they enjoyed in Dr. Roper's Physics class.

Dr. Roper shows these films not only for pleasure, but also for the physics principles they illustrate. Many books spend chapters on optics, and this is a very good example. Before watching the movies, he spends days explaining the procedure of 3-D filming and the limitations. His interesting discussions have convinced many students to take up 3-D photography as a hobby, and he had one student actually make a film. The unforgettable Dark Star prompted many deep discussions and spawned curiosity.

This experience is one the students will always remember. As Dr. Roper said, "Most students will forget the formulas, forget the laws, possibly even forget me, but they will never forget sitting in Physics with their 3-D glasses on watching The Creature from the Black Lagoon and It Came from Outer Space in three dimensions."

Racey hobby provides fun

Childhood fantasies often fade with time and the realization of personal potentials. Yet for Eric Eberman, senior, lifetime dreams have been realized. Eric, who races sports cars, is totally immersed in a competitive racing atmosphere.

Eric belongs to the Sports Car Club of America—the most renowned national organization which within its cast of amateur sports drivers has incorporated three major divisions: regional, divisional and national.

This past year Eric raced a Corvette and a Rabbit in divisional races and state championships throughout five states. Although amateur money is not awarded, Eric has received numerous trophies. In the future he said he will compete nationally after "converting his Corvette into an ultra-competitive car".

Ultimately, Eric wishes to make a profession of his captivating hobby. This aspiration, however, will require much practice and money. Eric feels that with luck and perseverance he will be able to master his beckoning fantasies.

Royals reach World Series

They had been there three times before, but after a year away from post-season play, the Royals returned to the playoffs to seek revenge against the Yankees. It was only appropriate that George Brett, the Royals year-long hero, should be the deciding factor in bringing Kansas City it's first World Series.

Brett, whose .390 season batting average was the highest in 40 years, sent a Rich Gossage fastball into the upper deck of Yankee stadium, giving the Royals a three game sweep of the Yanks and a chance to meet Philadelphia in the World Series. They were less fortunate against Pete Rose, Mike Schmidt, and the rest of the Phillies, but the boys in blue did put K.C. on the baseball map.

The Royals first trip to the World Series was highlighted by Willie Aiken's record-tying five home runs, Dan Quisenberry's ace relief pitching, and Frank White's defensive magic. Hopefully, a world championship ring will come easier for the Royals than their first American League Pennant.

Seniors '81 officers lead very unique class

The Class of 1981 was a very unique group led by four very unique officers. David Claflin, Sr. class president; Charlie Kenworthy, vice-president; Leigh Morrow, treasurer; and Kelly McNerney, secretary, were responsible for making some decisions that influenced not only the senior class, but all of South.

One of their main purposes was the selection and purchase of the senior gift to South. This gift is usually something that shows their pride in South in a displayment. In past years gifts have included the emblem on the floor in the front hall, trophy cases, the window cases in the front hall with the history of South, and the bronze plaque naming the principal and other people important to South the first year it opened.

In order to raise money for this gift, an annual Senior Talent Show was held. The show was performed by seniors who auditioned for the privilege, and tickets were sold for two shows during the school day. This year the officers tried a new fundraiser, they sold t-shirts with a different interpretation of the South Raider on it to the Class of '81. They also used money left over from Prom and senior class dues.

Their other main duty was to find a location for the After-Prom. This year Pogos was chosen as a place for a casual party to wind down after Prom.

Kelly McNerney was very involved in class leadership and said the experience has been invaluable to her. "It's a good feeling to know you've been chosen to make some important decisions, and even better when peers approve of those decisions." said Kelly.

Walden Day is an inspiration

Mrs. Long's junior English class enjoys a brisk walk in SMESL. One class period was set aside for the students to roam SMESL in order to become closer to nature. This was done in an attempt to better understand the feelings which inspired Thoreau to write a novel about his experiences at Walden Pond. The students dressed as they thought Thoreau might have, and planned several activities to help them in their research.

Kmart

The K mart Story · · ·

t started back in 1899 with Sebastian Kresge and a nickel-and-dime store that never sacrificed quality for price, but always came through with a bargain. Kresge's policy of "Satisfaction Always" became the foundation of a business that grew, and grew, and grew! In 1962, from those hundreds of Kresge's stores, a new concept evolved . . . and the first K mart discount store was opened. With the same high quality—plus lower-than-ever discount prices—and savings in dollars, not dimes! There were other discount stores, but none quite like K mart . . . and the public soon caught on to the BIG K mart DIFFERENCE — Satisfaction Always! Today, more than 1,400 K mart stores in America pay tribute to Sebastian Kresge and his integrity to bring our customers savings, quality, and that original promise of satisfaction always, backed by sincerity and a tradition of 80 years of promises kept!

Southettes On Ice ... that's nice !

To Jody:
One of the greatest blessings there could ever be is the blessing of your friendship and the joy it brings to me. God knew that everybody needs companionship and cheer; he knew that people need someone whose thoughts are always near. He knew they needed someone kind to lend a helping hand, someone to gladly take the time to care and understand . . . That's why God gave us friends . . . He knew that we all need someone to share each happy day, to be a source of courage when troubles come our way, someone to be true to us whether near or far apart, someone whose love we'll always hold and treasure in our hearts . . . Thats why God gave us friends . . . Dean Walley

Toad—I could of never made it without you, our friendship is beyond words and the memories will be cherished always. The summer of '80 was heaven, thank you for sharing it with me, everyday. NGAD-no. Your patience and listening concerning RCN never ceases to amaze me-what will happen in the future?? Best wishes with Steve—you deserve him. And to the family, Rowy and Richard, Thanks for putting up with me! Jody O., please, let's not let college and our seperate ways ruin the beautiful friendship that may always be. Thank you for being a friend . . . . . Andrew Gold it's mystic isn't it?

Why Should I Become A Band Mystic?

At one time a person came up to me and said unto me, "Why should I become a Band Mystic?" After he said this to me, I thought about him and what he had just said to me, and I said to him, "Everybody else is doing it." But then he pondered a little bit and replied confidently, "But everybody else isn't me." "Good point," I said back to him afterwards and then after I said that, I said, "But a rock feels no pain and an island never cries." "You're weird," he said thinking. Then he spoke again, "Besides, I'm not a conformist anyway, I'm an individualist." And I said unto him, "If you join you get your own special t-shirt." "I'll join!" he said. And he was glad.

"Don't be dismayed at goodbyes. A farewell is necessary before you can meet again. And meeting again after moments or lifetimes is certain for those who are friends"—Richard Back. — The loves I've shared, the lives I've been a part of, everyone that's been a part of mine—it has been so very special. Kel—I couldn't have done it with out you. . ."Timid and shy am I to face a world. . ." You helped me find something I didn't know I had. Buzzi—your constant love and support kept me from straying. "You may be right, I may be crazy; but it may just be a lunatic I'm looking for." Jen—Shine on Shine on. . .may your star twinkle always. Bill—you'll never know how special you still are. Mr. Swezey—words couldn't do my feelings justice. Marni—want to have some fun DEMOCRAT Style? Debbie, Nerita, Tim, Brent, Shaun, (Gayle)—you've given me the best gift of all—your love—THANKS

. . .My love is reality. My reality is love. Mom and Dad you pushed and pushed—I'm even grateful. The times I hated it the most were the times I learned the most. Merci-I wish you happiness. I love you. . .my friends, with your help I was able to see beyond horizons and into rainbows. I found unicorns, sunsets, magic and beauty never before known. Forever will you be held in my heart. "Parting is such sweet sorrow"—all things must end, but memories will keep forever.

To those who mean the most to me, words would be an injustice. Mom & Dad, thanks for everything you gave me. I was fortunate to have God bring me down to this earth as your daughter. Erin thanks for being everything. You really do not know what a friend is until you meet someone like you. Teachers Do a little more than everyone expects of you and soon they will expect a little more. South To those who made me love-it, to those who made me dislike it, I have learned from all of you. I will miss not those who I never met, but those I met and never knew. I did what I felt was right. I showed love to those who needed it most, I cared and tried. I laughed and goofed around and tried to make those happy who were sad. I was myself. But no one will ever quite understand. So many men seem destined to settle for something small, but I will not rest until I know I have it all. So do not ask me where I am going but listen when I am gone. Rivers belong where they can ramble. Eagles belong where they can fly. I have got to be where my sprit can run free, for I can hear the silence and I can see the darkness and I got to find my corner of the sky ..... Lynn Ann Mathews

To whom it may concern: After being here for three years I would like to share my insight with my friends and colleagues who have shared these times with me. My years of debate have caused me to believe that overnight tournaments are perhaps the most unique activity that anyone may partake in. Most notable of which is Pittsburg, where I was introduced into Magic finger massage, and running around in shorts in Nov. Involved in this were RH, RN, LK, BD, MB & LJ, to implicate a few. Youth in government is the activity for those whose interests fall into the catagory of two days in a hotel with a minimum of supervision, I must mention LR who hung outside a fifth story building to pull a quart of Orange Juice up from the fourth floor. It must be noted a portable bar was in one of the rooms contributed by the Hotel management, certain hanging lamps hung out windows. Certain people who have the notoriety to be there were BC SS JT DG & ML. Noting these activities I would suggest participation in them has been a highlight in my high school carear.

FRIENDS FOREVER ! !

To John, Suzi, lil' John, Dave, Debbie, Alisa, Sabrina, Dani, Richard, Judy, Cindy, and anyone else who's made me smile;
Together,
Reaching out and growing
Heading for the stars
Looking towards tomorrow
And all that will be ours
We head for the horizon
Learning all the way
Pasting memories in our minds
From every single day
Grasping for the clouds
Always just beyond our reach
Counting grains of sand
That have washed upon the beach
Following a rainbow
And searching for its end . . .
But I've achieved each one of these
Here with you my friend
Thank you all!
Good luck and be happy

THE TRUTH ABOUT MY FRIEND
What can I tell you about my friend?
If I said that we have a lot in common,
you'd imagine somebody just like me,
which she's certainly not.
If I mentioned some of the silly things she's said and done to tickle me into helpless hysterics, you might decide she's rather a frivolous sort of person, which she's anything but.
And if I spoke of how good and kind and gentle she is, you'd probably think she comes equipped with halo, harp and wings, which she definitely doesn't.
Best for me to say I love her, and if you knew her, so would you.

Kandi—My best friend. What is a "best friend?" A best friend is a person that you can share all of your hopes and dreams with, your tears and your laughter, you fears and frustrations. . .And God knows that we've had our share. A best friend is a person who knows everything about you—your strong points as well as your faults; the only person in the whole world who truly knows the real you and still will like you just the way you are. She will never betray or lie to you. Although the many miles may separate us, you are always in my heart. . .never hesitate to call on me—anytime.

"Dreams were meant to carry us, soon we will be free."
C.C.

Where do I begin to tell my friends how much I love them. They stuck with me thru thick and thin and all my problems. It's so hard saying goodbye. It's like saying goodbye to a part of me. Emma, you'll never know how much I love you. KU here we come. Pafost, Juanita and Lynnie, remember all the good times we had together, like Lowie, CP, LK and me. Juanita, I love you so much. You've always been there when I needed ya. THANKS PAL! Remember the nights at Cindy's when you guys helped me so much. My life wouldn't be complete without you. Pafost, please keep in touch from the mountains Lynne, keep in touch from the beach. You too, Joanne. JAY CEE, I wouldn't have made it thru the three years without you. You're like a second DAD to me. Pafost, Juanita and Lynnie, Sanibel Island, here we come. Best times forever. The words "best friend" never came into my life until Joanne, Cindy and Lynnie came along. Laura, remember LD al Town and Country. I'll never forget. We had the best time together. Mom and Dad, thanks for helping me through the hard times and understanding. I love you both so much. No one has parents like you. Last, but not least, JERRY. There will never be words to express my feelings for you and how much I love you. I want to spend the rest of eternity with you. Sorry for the hard times. You'll always be my one and only TEDDY BEAR. PLEASE NEVER LEAVE ME. GOODBYE SMS. PARTY! LOVE. DILLONGER

Going my way?

We've done it! During that hot summer week of slimy eggs, late nights, togaed doors and snorting contests, February 27 seemed like an eternity. Ann, Joan, Joyce, Barb, Ken, Leigh and Sheldon: this year wouldn't have run as smoothly as it did without your hard work and dedication. You are the best editors anyone could ask for. Thanks for all your help and support.

Tom, Mike, David T., Steve J., David G., Judy, Kathy, Bob, Steve K., Sharon, Lyn, Betsy, Cindy, Kandi, Scott, Laura, Joe, Debbie: From "deadline is in one week" to "we're out of paper" to "all headline and copy counts have been changed" to "I lost your roll of film," your never-ending cooperation has been great. Keep up the good work next year!

Mrs. Barber: The encouragement and patience you have shown can only be measured by the quality of this book. I have been very fortunate to work with you these past two years. And who knows? Maybe Little Barb will grow up to be an ICP representative.

The memories and experiences shared this year are unforgettable. Our major goals have been achieved: We have created a book which captures the year's events in a new and different way, and most importantly, we have discovered the true purpose of a yearbook.

Michele Watts

Editor-in-Chief

Well, we did it! The frustration and panic that we all experienced are worth the satisfaction we receive from knowing that we have captured an entire school year in one book. Mrs. Barber, thank you for all the help you have given me and the patience with which you have worked with me. I am proud to have known you and worked with you the past two years. Michele, we couldn't have asked for a better editor-in-chief. You've done an outstanding job. Ann, Barb, Joyce, Ken, Leigh and Sheldon, I'm glad we were all able to cooperate and get along so well with each other. We could never have put out this masterpiece if we hadn't. Fellow yearbook campers, ICP camp was a good experience even though the food wasn't edible. We will all be eternally grateful to Safeway! Toga-ed any doors lately? Sharon and Lyn, even though it may not have seemed like it, I always appreciated your efforts. You have both done a great job. I'm glad I got to know both of you and that you were on Academics Staff with me. To everyone else on the staff, you've all been great and should be proud of the work you have done on this book. What is the purpose of a yearbook, anyway?

Joan Bowen

Academics Editor

How do I begin to sum up an entire years work? A lot of myself and the rest of the staff have gone into this book to capture the year's memories for the school. We hope that in the years to come the time, effort care and especially the love that this book is made of will be truly appreciated.

Thanks to Joe who put up with all my ranting and raving about the Ad's this year. Good luck next year, I know you'll do a great job!

I would like to thank all the photographers: Mike, David, Sheldon, Tommy, David and Steve, who without this book would be impossible. And God bless the little man who kept the door closed while the prints were developing.

The entire Heritage Staff—what can I say? If you hadn't given up so much of your time this book would only be a dream. Don't you think it was worth it?

Mrs. Barber we have done it! The nine of us have completed a book that is all our own. We have grown and learned together. Congratulations on your new life style. I wish you all the happiness in the world!

Mom and Dad you have always been there when I needed to blow about my problems. The two of you were so understanding and always had the right answer. I love you both tremendously!

And finally I want to thank all the people who risked their lives in my car this year.

Barbara Eby

Art Editor

I've heard of three coins in a fountain, but six editors in one? ICP camp gave us many memories. Ken's pom pom and orange, the toga'd door, snorting, eight is enough, slimy eggs and curdled milk. Once we arrived back at room 195 our direction seemed not to be south, but upward. Our SOUTH was a new direction, if we could only find our way through the lime jello.

"What do you think the purpose of a yearbook is?" A direct quote from Miss Joan Bowen. No matter what method we used to select this years' staff, I don't think we could have done a better job. We shared alot of fun times. Along with dancing in the back, I think we even learned something. Most of all, we learned how to get along with one another.

Kathy, Bob, Joe: Who says good friends can't work well together? Kathy, I could never have found a truer friend!

Mom and Dad—Thank you for your Love, support and caring.

Business Editor

Two years of yearbook could be a royal pain,
But just look . . . we are still quite sane.
In the beginning all quiet and meek,
It seems we've all climbed a mountain peak.
Rising to the top is just what we have done,
Who could have thought it would be so much fun?
Steve, Bob, Judy, Kathy my hard working staff,
I hope you can look back on the traumas and laugh.
Thank you for striving for perfection,
You did it all without too much objection.
When I see you all with a little smile
or a smirk,
I will know that you gained from your hard hours of work.
To my fellow editors—the best were
the times we shared,
I know our work will show how much we cared.
From interviews, planning, to our inside jokes.
The idea of turquoise and orange yearbooks which made the staff
choke.
Barb, thanks for all the understanding,
you are absolutely the best,
And we hope little Barb won't be too much of a pest.
The friendships, knowledge and experiences I have gained,
Without yearbook would never have been obtained.
To all, I thank you for the times so great,
It is now time to step out and once again create.

Ann Jacobson

Organizations/Student Life Editor

I would like to thank everyone on this year's staff for all the fun we had. Even though many times pictures were hard to get, (from delays in printing, to problems getting them taken, to errors in development) the photographers always pulled through. Tom, David, Steve, Mike, and David, you all did a super job. Although sometimes I could have killed you because of a disagreement, usually you were all a great team. To the rest of the staff, I hope you all like the pictures because we all gave so much of our time in getting you the best pictures possible. I think everyone did a super job with the yearbook and that it is probably one of the best if not the best ever in the state of Kansas. Mrs. Barber, you were super this year in putting up with the photographers. The memories that have been captured in this book will never come close to the memories of putting the book together.

Sheldon M. Samuels

Photography Editor

The book is finished—our goal is attained. Now it is time for me to thank everyone on the yearbook staff, especially my responsible staff consisting of Laura (my friend) and Scott (my buddy). Ann, Tommy, Sharon, Joyce, Joan, Bob, Joe, Michele, Barb, Steve, Ken, Judy, Sheldon, Kandi, Steve, Lyn, Kathy, Betsy, Mike, David, Cindy and David—Thank you for putting up with my ups and downs. Mrs. Barber—you are a terrific lady with much patience.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank my mother and father. Without your support I would have never made it through these past three years.

I will never forget the hysterical happenings that occurred in room 195. This year has been very worthwhile and I am so happy that we put together this unique book.

What all began with eight newly chosen, enthusiastic editors full of new ideas has finally come to an end with the arrival of this book! Wow! From "What's the real purpose of a yearbook?", yearbook camp with the talent show (and the girl who forgot her song), and the closet to all the hours of work, it has been quite a year. Throughout, our goal was not to live up to a standard of excellence, but to set one. Our primary decision was to produce a high quality yearbook whose creativity moved in new directions, for a school and a student body doing the same. I am confident we have done just that.

But along with all the satisfaction and overwhelming joy which accompany OUR yearbook, comes a certain fear. It is a fear which most of us have of the future and the unknown. As our high school days draw to a close, we must attempt to prepare for a change in lifestyle. We will, for the most part, leave our friends and the security of home, and begin a new and independent way of life. We will each move in new directions.

Hopefully, though, South has prepared us for whatever we may face in the coming years. Yet wherever we go, and no matter how far disoriented we become from our high school years, this yearbook will forever capture the spriit and emotion of the year in a beautiful and sophisticated way. And THAT is the REAL purpose of a yearbook.

Another year gone by . . .

Warm weather, shorts and frisbees were familiar signs characterizing the end of the school year.

Seniors looked forward to their last day of school with excitement and uncertainty. For them, graduation would be a time to say good-bye to old friends and a final farewell to Shawnee Mission South.

Underclassmen looked to their next year in anticipation of new classes and the added status of becoming a junior or senior.

Several traditional events symbolized the end of the year. The slide show depicting the seniors' last year proved to be a tearful experience for many at the Senior Talent Show. Prom, which was held at the Ramada Inn Central, provided a romantic evening that many couples will nostagically remember forever. Evening of Jazz and Drill Team Extravaganza were the final appearances of two outstanding performing groups. Yearbook distribution and signing ended the term and was for some the last time to socialize with friends at school before beginning summer jobs or making last-minute college plans.

Looking back, the year had been a memorable one, full of ups and downs and the gradual changing of times.

Directions in the future . . .

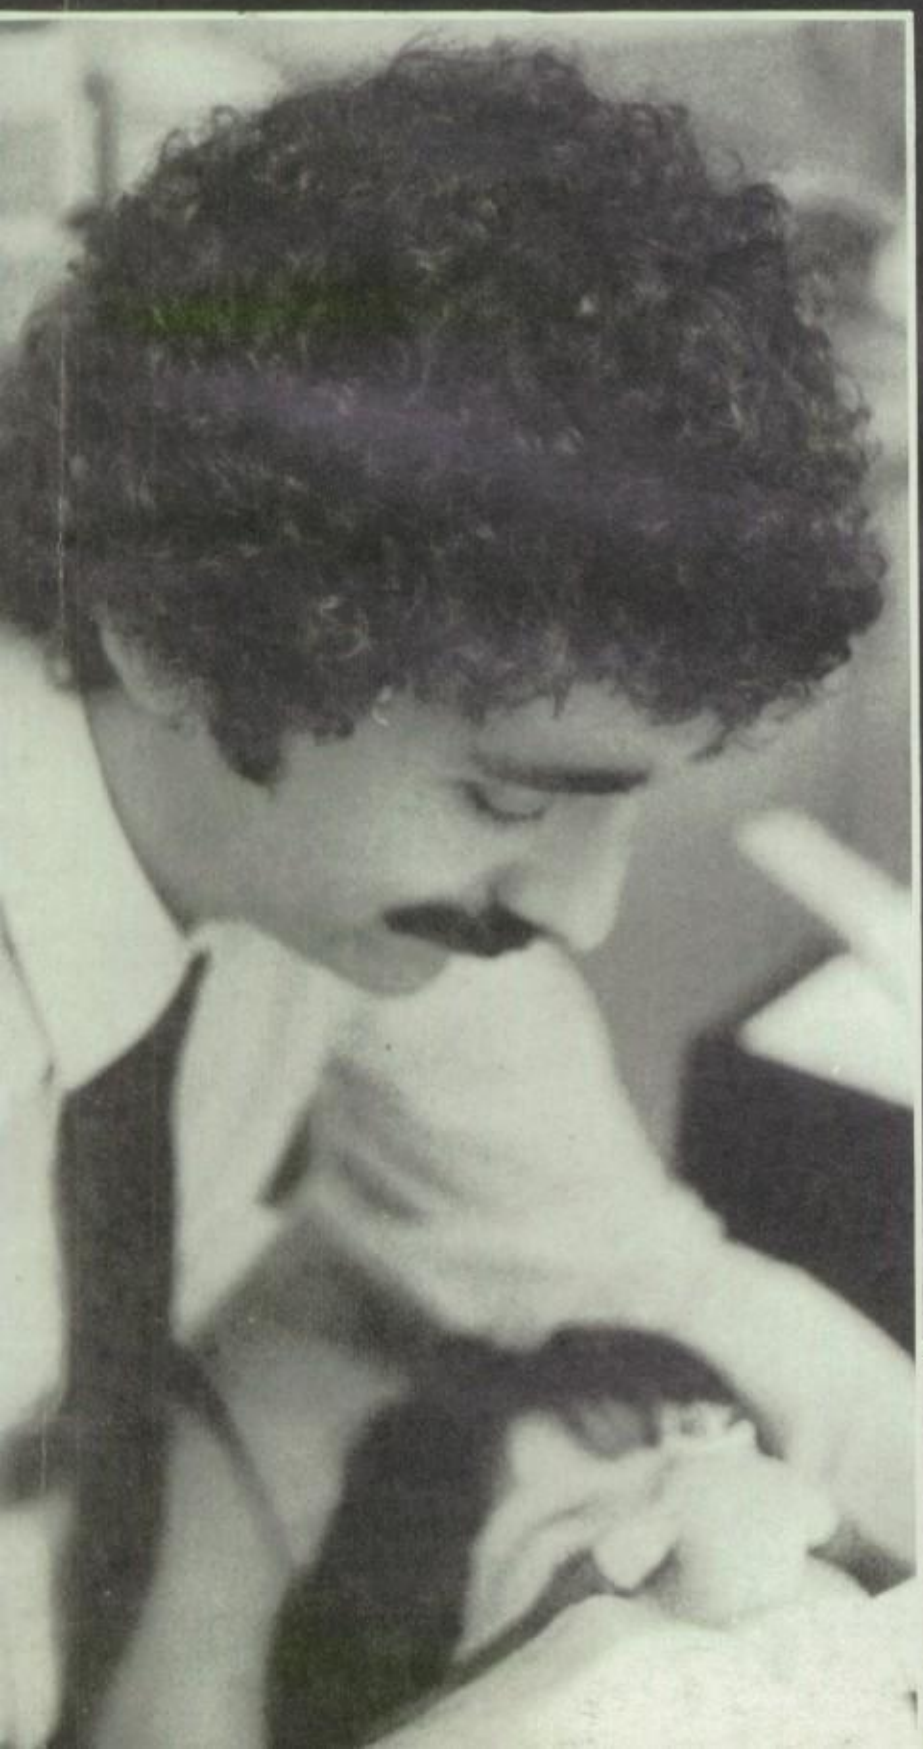
As the school year drew to a close, many students looked ahead to the future directions they would take in life.

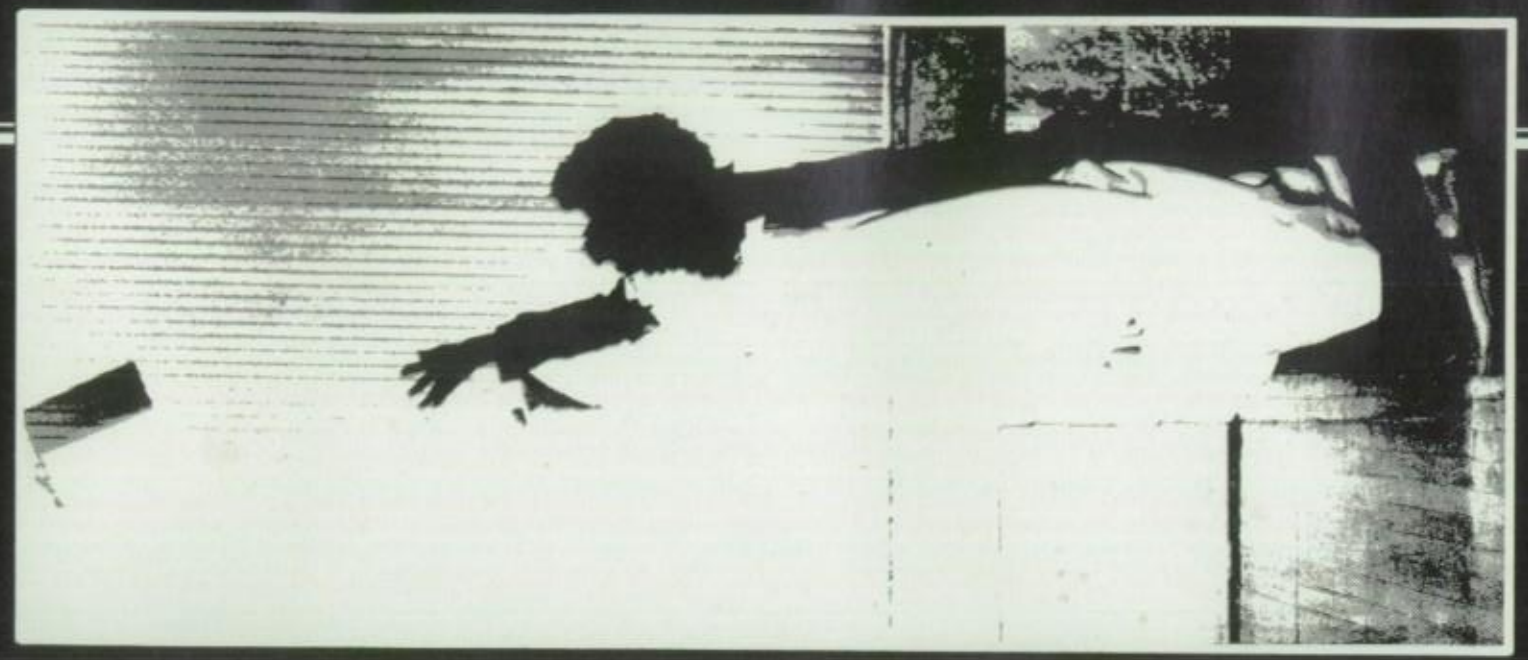
While most chose to continue their educations at various colleges and universities throughout the country after graduation, some married, worked or joined the military service.

High school students were often uncertain about the careers they would choose later in life. However, for many, college would prove to be a place for discovery and exploration of careers.

In the next ten years, South students will have begun to pursue various careers as scientists, engineers or technicians due to an expected rise in demand for energy, transportation and environmental protection specialists.

Scattered all over the country South alumni would fulfill jobs as diverse as doctors, lawyers and construction workers to secretaries, salespersons and housewives. Whatever directions they decided to take, South students soon faced the challenges of life on their own.





Rachelle,

What can I say except I love you. This year has been great, that is when we got along together. You've really helped me out alot this year, and I wouldn't trade you for anyone. We sure had some ups and downs, but I hope that we have everything straightened out now. You mean everything to me, I just wish we could be more open to one another. I'm really glad we got together this summer. You've been the best thing that has happened to me this year. I'll never forget how much you've helped me out. We've had some great times together and I hope we stay the best of friends forever. Maybe we can work things out and get back together. I'll never forget you Rachelle and I'll always love you.

Love always

Michael

Rachelle,
This year has been fantastic!!! Super great summer and a great summer and a great summer and a
